SOUTHERN FLOODS TAKE 9 LIVES

SWOLLEN STREAMS FLOOD VAST AREAS; AUTOISTS DROWNED

Car Plunges From Bridge; Ohio Still Threatened

Swirling waters of a score or more rivers and smaller streams flooded parts of the south and midwest today, with the former section suffering great damage. The midwest situation is becoming less acute.

Torrents raged through parts of the south as streams, swollen by thaws to the north and heavy rains, left their banks and inundated thousands of acres of farm land. The first deaths were reported yesterday.

The death toll was placed at nine today, seven of the deaths occurring in Georgia and two in Kentucky. Six persons were drowned when their motor car plunged off a bridge near Lincolnton, Ga., a negro was drowned in the same state when he fell into a stream and two persons died when their automobile left the highway and tumbled into a stream near Louisville, Ky.

The floods are striking the south earlier this year than in previous years.

Georgia suffered the greatest damage. Milledgeville and Augusta were practically marooned. The Oconee and Okmulgee Rivers are out of their banks, cutting off railway and highway traffic. A hurried call was sent out for volunteers to aid in strengthening the river banks with sandbags.

Selma, Ala., may suffer extensive damage if the Tombigbee river continues to rise, as is expected. Train service over the state is nearly at a standstill.

North and South Carolina reported many bridges out, highways under water and wide damage to crop lands. The Broad, French, Catawba and Swannona Rivers are past flood stage, their waters spreading over a vast area.

In Ohio, danger threatened from the Ohio, Maumee, Scioto and Tuscarawas Rivers. Total destruction to date amounted to over $2,000,000. Waters are receding in parts of the state which already suffered considerable loss.

Missouri and Illinois reported prospects for alleviation of the situation, although waters of streams in those states still are at the danger mark.

Kentucky suffered only slight damage. Streams in that state were reported nearing normal stages.

CHICAGO MURDER SUSPECTS HELD

EXPLOSION SINKS SHIP; REPORT THREE KILLED

BUENA VENTURA, Colombia, March 1.—The English steamer Tritonia, loaded with dynamite and gasoline, was shattered by a terrific explosion and sank in Buena Ventura Bay yesterday. A check-up today showed that three men had been killed and many injured, while several, including the first and second engineers, were missing.

The explosion was of such force that the custom house, 1-200 yards from the ship, was unroofed and several nearby structures, including the army barracks, were damaged. Troops patrolled the city today. Most of the steamer's crew put off in lifeboats just before the explosion.

TOWNS RUINED BY TIDAL WAVE

TOKIO, March 1.—Three villages were destroyed and many others suffered great damage today when a tidal wave hit the Japanese coast near Choshi for a distance of many miles.

The first huge wave which destroyed the villages was followed by other smaller waves with comparatively less damage.

Choshi is on the point of a peninsula on the eastern coast of Japan, about sixty-five miles east of Tokio in Chiba province.

The number of casualties were not reported immediately.

FIRST PICTURE OF TORNADO DAMAGE

Killing more than a score and injuring fifty persons, a tornado practically devastated the little town of Duncan, Miss. Above are two views of the community snapped just after the twister had wrought its damage, while the search for the dead and injured was still being conducted.

TEN SOUGHT IN MURDER SLAIN

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—Ten members of the band of outlaws who kidnaped C. C. Alsthorpe and J. M. Underwood, Americans, last week and murdered them, were killed by federal troops, Col. Bonifacio Salinas of Guanajuato reported to the government last night.

The official dispatch described the bandits as "fanatics."

Alsthorpe and Underwood were found dead near Guanajuato by federal troops immediately after they had effected a contract with bandits.

The Americans were kidnaped from the Guanajuato Mines and Reduction Company and ransom of $75,000 was asked for them. The Mexican government sent troops in pursuit of the bandits at the request of the United States government.

The Guanajuato Mines and Reduction Company Total C. C. Alsthorpe and J. M. Underwood, who were murdered by a bandit gang near Mexico City, were engineers, is a Columbus, Ohio, firm.

EXPECT ARRESTS IN CUBAN DEATH PLOT

HAVANA, March 1.—New arrests in the Cuban government's efforts to round up seventy-three persons accused of plotting the assassination of President Gerardo Machado and the overthrow of the government were expected momentarily today.

Many of those accused still were free, including those in foreign countries. Chief of Police Alfonso Fors said he had confiscated papers which showed several groups in foreign countries were raising funds to purchase munitions for a revolt. Fors made the charges of the revolutionary plot in court and was granted warrants against the seventy-three suspects.

Fors presented documents to show the plotters planned to show the United States into the affair by asking that government to send troops here saying "Cuban people were unable to govern themselves."

CONGRESS PREPARES FOR QUIET CLOSING OF SHORT SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 1.—With the legislative slate cleaner than had been anticipated, congressional leaders were preparing today for a peaceful closing of the short session of the seventieth congress.

The one remaining filibuster was to be staged in the senate this afternoon against the house bill extending the life of the radio commission another year, but Senator Watson of Indiana, in charge of the measure, is not worried. He has a cloture petition which probably will be clapped on debate Saturday, forcing a vote.

The Jones bill increasing the penalties for liquor law violators was on its way to the president for signature. The second deficiency bill with the more important last minute appropriations was in conference. The house leaders were considering reviving the old first deficiency appropriation with prospects the senate would abandon its long fight for the $24,000,000 prohibition enforcement increase and accept the house provision for an increase of nearly $3,000,000 which President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon say is sufficient.

The reappointment bill is definitely dead in the senate. The nomination of Irvin Lenroot of Wisconsin to be member of the United States court of customs appeals is being so vigorously opposed, the leaders have about decided to let it drop, fearing if they press it they will disrupt the whole peace program.

After the radio bill is out of the way there will be little of importance, and both houses plan to spend their time cleaning the calendars of the hundreds of pending claims bills, most of which are inconsequential. If necessary, there may be a Sunday session of both houses to get these bills through.

No plans are being made for further night sessions.

The house was to spend the day debating several judgements and other minor bills.

ELEVEN DIE IN COAST STORMS

PARIS, March 1.—Eleven persons lost their lives in storms along the French coast yesterday and last night.

Fishing smacks suffered heavily from the storms and many were wrecked. The wrecks resulted in drownings of five fishermen near Dunkerque, three off Quimper, and three off Sables Dolonne.

KILLED IN CRASH

NAPOLEON, March 1.—Albert S. Shumaker, 35, of Napoleon, was killed at Monroe, Mich., early today when his automobile collided with a truck. Fred Byram, 47, Toledo motorist who crashed into the wreckage a few moments later, was injured.

SEEK BANDIT CAR AFTER PLOT TO ROB PAY TRAIN IS BLOCKED

STEBENVILLE, O., March 1.—Search was being made here today for an armored car loaded with bandits who are reported to have plotted to hold up the Windor Power and Coal Company pay train yesterday.

Warned of the threatened hold up, the pay train made a special stop and delivered the $25,000 payroll to a guard consisting of Sheriff Ambrose Hagib of Ohio County, West Virginia, Sheriff Irwin Clark of Brooke County, their deputies, Sergt. A. M. Long and seven police officers.

Machine gun nests had been concealed around the place where the train stopped, but nothing happened to interfere with the transfer of the money. The man who tipped E. S. Wade of the coal company of the robbery plans is held for questioning.

DRY AGENTS ARREST THIRTEEN PERSONS IN ELMWOOD PLACE

Seventeen "Home-Brew" Places Are
Raided

CINCINNATI, O., March 1.—As residents of the village of Elmwood Place were preparing for their usual quiet evening last night, an army of fifty-eight prohibition agents descended and seventeen places known to the villagers as "home brew joints" were raided.

Thirteen persons were arrested and charged with violating the national prohibition act. Among them was Charles Behrens, one of the two night policemen of the village.

Warrants were issued charging sixteen other persons with violations. Seven others were taken to federal prohibition headquarters but were released after being questioned. These proved to be customers, waiters and persons attracted by the noise of the raiders. The thirteen against whom charges were filed were taken to the first district police station to await a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Harry Neal Smith today.

The raid was the first official act of G. J. Simons who took office yesterday as assistant prohibition commissioner of the Ohio-Indiana district.

The agents who participated in the raids were brought to Cincinnati from Cleveland, Columbus and Indiana, yesterday afternoon. Fourteen state agents who assisted were under the direction of Rupert R. Beetham, state prohibition director. All left town immediately after turning in their prisoners.

Simons is best known here for his activities in the Remus case. He led the squad of Indiana agents who swept down on George Remus's famous whiskey cutting place in "Death Valley," in Westwood in 1922 and gathered the evidence which latter sent Remus and his gang to the federal penitentiary.

HANGS HIMSELF

CINCINNATI, March 1.—Fashioning a noose from his neckties, A. W. Gaddum, 71, hanged himself here late yesterday. He had been ill for five years.

COOLIDGE CABINET HAS FINAL MEETING TO SAY FAREWELLS

Two Who Took Office
With Coolidge To Continue Posts

WASHINGTON, March 1.—With but two business days remaining before he turns over the reins of government to Herbert Hoover, President Coolidge today virtually finished his administration with the final cabinet meeting of his term.

It was mostly a meeting of farewells and good wishes, for there was little business to demand the attention of the last gathering of the Coolidge official family.

The spacious and richly furnished cabinet room, immediately to the left of the president's private office, provided an uncommonly austere setting this morning, for it has been nearly stripped of wall decorations. Several of the chairs of the retiring members have been removed, and three new ones of the same pattern await their first occupant.

Of the ten men who make up the cabinet today, only two—Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Labor Davis—took office eight years ago with Mr. Coolidge. By a trick of political circumstances, these are the only two members of the Coolidge cabinet who appear assured of places in the Hoover administration.

Two of the nation's elder statesmen probably end their public careers with today's meeting. Secretary of State Kellogg soon will return to Minnesota to resume practice of law amid the surroundings in which a quarter of a century ago he began his political career.

Postmaster General New, likewise one of the seniors of the Coolidge cabinet, looks forward to a period of retirement on his Virginia estate not far from the capital.

Secretary of Commerce Whiting and Attorney General Sargent, both close personal friends of President Coolidge, plan to return immediately to their New England homes, the former in Holyoke, Mass., and the latter in Ludlow, Vt.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, whose policies frequently were the storm centers of the administration during the trying times of agriculture's post-war distress, plans to remain in Washington as director of the newly organized cooperative fruit marketing enterprise.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who led the California Supreme Court to enter the cabinet, has been mentioned as a likely appointee to the federal circuit court in the recently created ninth circuit. The bill creating this additional review jurisdiction was signed by President Coolidge only yesterday.

Secretary of the Interior West, who succeeded to the post of Chairman Hubert Work of the Republican national committee last July, when Work undertook direction of the Hoover campaign, is planning to return to Chicago to resume his law practice.

Secretary of War Davis will return to his St. Louis home, but he has not announced his plans.

XENIA LOSES TO STIVERS

Dayton Stivers ran true to form and registered its expected victory over Xenia Central High's basketball quintet in the first round of the Class A division of the sectional state tournament at Memorial Hall, Springfield, Friday afternoon, winning by a margin of 45 to 11.

By virtue of its victory, the Orange Crusader advanced to the second round and will clash with the winner of the Bellefontaine Fairview game at 3:45 p. m. Saturday. The defeat meant elimination for the Buccaneers from the tourney.

Stivers led 7 to 1 the first quarter, 17 to 7 at the half and 32 to 9 the third period.

In the opening Class A tourney game early in the afternoon, Dayton Kiser eliminated Greenville, 22 to 17, and will have Urbana, which drew a first round bye, as its opponent in the second round at 2:50 p. m. Saturday.

NET DRAWN TIGHTLY AROUND FORMER AL CAPONE BODYGUARD

Second Suspect Gave Himself Up When Being Sought

CHICAGO, March 1.—A net of circumstantial evidence was drawn tightly today around Jack McGurn, Capone gunman, and Rocco Fanelli, said to be a former bodyguard for Al Capone, as police sought murder charges against the two in connection with the gang slaughter of February 14.

Unless the two are charged formally with murder today, they will be released from custody on writs of habeas corpus, the usual weapon used by gangland to free its members from the unpleasantness of police questioning. McGurn was arrested in the Stevens Hotel with a pretty blonde artist's model, Louise Rolfe. Fanelli walked into the police station yesterday and asked if he was wanted for anything. His name was included in the list of seventeen wanted for questioning as was McGurn's and police assumed Fanelli had fled.

Fanelli was placed in the show-up room and viewed by a number of persons, among them being the mysterious witness whom police are keeping under cover. It was this witness who declared he saw McGurn enter the north side garage where the massacre of seven men took place. McGurn will rely almost entirely on Miss Rolfe for his alibi in the case. The young woman has told newspapermen that McGurn was with her all of Valentine's Day and that he remained in bed until after noon. The murders took place around noon.

BUILDINGS IN PATH OF BLAZE IN MINE

NEW STRAITSVILLE, O., March 1.—Six homes and the new $30,000 high school buildings today were in the path of the underground coal fire that has been smoldering here forty-five years, as the subterranean blaze stretched its tongue in a new direction.

Workers under the direction of Thomas Richards, district mine inspector, used dynamite late yesterday in an effort to halt the march of the flames toward the town.

Scores of spectators gathered around, as the fire, breaking through the shell of earth above it, leaped high in the air.

Striking miners are said to have started the fire in the '80's by sending a burning coal car into the mine. Since then it has spread to hundreds of acres of coal veins, destroying the valuable deposits and the soil lying above.

FATHER OF SUZANNE LENGLEN SUCCUMBS

NICE, France, March 1.—Charles Lenglen, 71, whose careful training gave the world one of its greatest, if not the greatest woman tennis stars, died early today of pneumonia.

Suzanne Lenglen always gave credit to her father for her phenomenal tennis ability and declared that from first to last, he was her only trainer. He began coaching her when she was 11.

LINDY WILL WED SOON

Believe Nuptials Will Occur Before Flyer Returns To States.

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—The wedding of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Spencer Morrow before the flyer returns to the United States from his present trip to Mexico was regarded today as highly probable.

Lindbergh's coming trip for the week-end to Cuernavaca with United States Senator Dwight W. Morrow and his family led to renewed discussion of a possible quiet wedding at the Morrow country retreat.

Friends of the family said they would not be surprised if the marriage occurred at any time, perhaps without notice. The promise of the Morgrows that an announcement of the marriage would be made to the press "in due time," it was pointed out, did not preclude the possibility that the announcement might be made after the wedding had taken place.

OHIO BANKING CODE WOULD BE CHANGED UNDER NEW MEASURE

House Passes Ten, Senate Six Bills On Busy Day

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—The general assembly stood adjourned today until Monday night, after one of the busiest days the lawmakers have put in.

New record for the session was established when the house passed ten bills and killed two and the senate passed six.

Henceforward the solons will work on Friday. Notice to this effect was served by Speaker O. C. Gray of the house after it developed that a session planned for today could not be held because certain representatives had made previous business arrangements.

Considered most important among the measures passed yesterday was the bill by Rep. Horace R. Sanborn, of Cleveland, revising the state banking code and giving additional authority to the state banking department.

The measure was sponsored by the Ohio Bankers' Association and the state banking department. Among other things it provides that banks shall be examined at least twice a year, permits the banking superintendent to charge off "undesirable assets" and provides that no bank may begin business until it has a surplus equal to at least 20 per cent of its capital.

Rep. Ray C. Carpenter, of Seneca County, who has earned the sobriquet of "bill killer," added another scalp to his belt when he led an attack which resulted in defeat of a bill by Rep. L. J. Abele of Cleveland. The bill would have permitted payment of court judgments obtained by a minor plaintiff to the attorney of record.

The house also voted down a bill by Rep. Earle Johnson of Lake County to require county commissioners to change township boundaries to correspond with lines of an over-lapping municipal corporation.

A bill by Mrs. Elma P. Valentine of Columbus, authorizing boards of education to employ school dentists, dental hygienists and assistants to care for the teeth of public school children, was approved by the house by a vote of 55 to 14.

Other measures approved affected certain localities and had no general bearing on the state as a whole.

FIRE CHIEF DIES

NORWALK, March 1.—Acute indigestion was assigned today as the cause of the death of Fire Chief William J. Bascom, 72, who died suddenly late yesterday shortly after alighting from a fire department automobile.

Police have definitely established that the former Mrs. Milam, her son Edward and a girl who answered Eloise's description, took taxi here for Coal Grove, where they crossed the Ohio River by ferry into Ashland, Ky.

They are believed to be enroute to the home of Mrs. Milam's father, William Shannon, near Pritchard, W. Va., or that of her uncle, James Smith, at Kenova, W. Va.

TREASURY REGIME PROBE SUGGESTED IN NEW RESOLUTION

Ex-Official Claims Politics Back Of House Proposal

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—Former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, in an interview today, charged "politics" was behind a house resolution introduced late yesterday demanding a legislative investigation of his regime as treasurer.

"It's politics," Buckley told newspapermen when informed of the resolution. "Who introduced it?" he asked succinctly.

Advised that the resolution was sponsored by Rep. Frank Cave of Mansfield, Buckley said: "There's a little politics right there. Can't you see it?"

Cave, the former treasurer pointed out, comes from the home town of the Democratic nominee whom Buckley defeated last fall, Fred M. Bushnell.

"I never was interested in slot machine legislation," Buckley declared in answer to another charge contained in Rep. Cave's resolution.

The resolution, introduced while the house was quietly conducting routine business, caused a sensation. It demands a legislative probe of reported irregularities in the treasury department under Buckley's administration, including "the

SEVEN KILLED BY EXPLOSION OF COMPRESSOR

Launch Probe Of
Stone Mountain
Tragedy

ATLANTA, Ga., March 1.—An investigation was underway today to determine responsibility for the explosion of a compressed air tank at Stone Mountain, which resulted in the death of seven men and serious injury to eight others. Three of the injured are not expected to recover.

It is believed a workman neglected to turn a petcock which connected an air pump with the tank which exploded. The safety valve on the tank evidently failed to work, the instrument failing to capacity, beyond, and bursting with a roar and detonation which shook the entire neighborhood.

Three of the seven men killed were white men, they were: O. S. Cowan, the foreman, O. S. Cowan, John Glaze.

All three were residents of the village which was sprung up to the shadow of the massive mountain of stone being carved slowly into a giant memorial of Civil War days.

BELIEVE MOTHER KIDNAPED CHILD

IRONTON, O., March 1.—Police here today were convinced that Eloise Milam, 8, daughter of Elmer Milam, C. and O. engineer, who was kidnaped from a public school here Tuesday, has been taken into West Virginia by her mother, Janetta Milam, Milam's divorced wife, and Edward Milam, 10, a son of the same marriage.

Police have definitely established that the former Mrs. Milam, her son Edward and a girl who answered Eloise's description, took taxi here for Coal Grove, where they crossed the Ohio River by ferry into Ashland, Ky.

They are believed to be enroute to the home of Mrs. Milam's father, William Shannon, near Pritchard, W. Va., or that of her uncle, James Smith, at Kenova, W. Va.

MARINE OFFICER DIES FROM BURNS

TOKIO, March 1.—First Lieut. John G. Clausing, U. S. Marine Corps, died in the Marine Hospital today from burns received in a fire Sunday in which his Russian wife lost her life.

Evidence at the inquest of his wife was of a sensational nature, centering on an unexplained fracture of her skull. The coroner's jury had adjourned the inquest to await Clausing's testimony. The couple was reported to have been trapped by the fire while in bed at their residence.

EXPECT ARRESTS IN CUBAN DEATH PLOT

HAVANA, March 1.—New arrests in the Cuban government's efforts to round up seventy-three persons accused of plotting the assassination of President Gerardo Machado and the overthrow of the government were expected momentarily today.

Many of those accused still were free, including those in foreign countries. Judicial Chief of Police Alfonso Fors said he had confiscated papers which showed several groups in foreign countries were raising funds to purchase munitions for a revolt. Fors made charges of the revolutionary plot in court and was granted warrants against the seventy-three suspects.

Fors presented documents to show the plotters planned to draw the United States into the affair by asking that government to send troops here saying "Cuban people were unable to govern themselves."

TREASURY REGIME PROBE SUGGESTED IN NEW RESOLUTION

Ex-Official Claims Politics Back Of House Proposal

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—Former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, in an interview today, charged "politics" was behind a house resolution introduced late yesterday demanding a legislative investigation of his regime as treasurer.

"It's politics," Buckley told newsmen when informed of the resolution. "Who introduced it?" he asked succinctly.

Advised that the resolution was sponsored by Rep. Frank Cave of Mansfield, Buckley said:

"There's a little politics right there. Can't you see it?"

Cave, the former treasurer pointed out, comes from the home town of the Democratic nominee whom Buckley defeated last fall, Fred M. Bushnell.

"I never was interested in slot machine legislation," Buckley declared in answer to another charge contained in Rep. Cave's resolution.

The resolution, introduced while the house was quietly conducting routine business, caused a sensation. It demands a legislative probe of reported irregularities in the treasury department under Buckley's administration, including "the

SEVEN KILLED BY EXPLOSION OF COMPRESSOR

Launch Probe Of
Stone Mountain
Tragedy

ATLANTA, Ga., March 1.—An investigation was underway today to determine responsibility for the explosion of a compressed air tank at Stone Mountain, which resulted in the death of seven men and serious injury to eight others. Three of the injured are not expected to recover.

It is believed a workman neglected to turn a petcock which connected an air pump with the tank which exploded. The safety valve on the tank evidently failed to work, the instrument failing to capacity, beyond, and bursting with a roar and detonation which shook the entire neighborhood.

Three of the seven men killed were white men, they were:

O. S. Davis, foreman.
C. S. Cowan.
John Glaze.

All three were residents of the village which was sprung up in the shadow of the massive mountain of stone being carved slowly into a giant memorial of Civil War days.

BELIEVE MOTHER KIDNAPED CHILD

IRONTON, O., March 1.—Police here today were convinced that Eloise Milam, 8, daughter of Elmer Milam, C. and O. engineer, who was kidnapped from a public school here Tuesday, has been taken into West Virginia by her mother, Janette Milam, Milam's divorced wife, and Edward Milam, 10, a son of the same marriage.

Police have definitely established that the former Mrs. Milam, her son Edward and a girl who answered Eloise's description, took a taxi here for Coal Grove, where they crossed the Ohio River by ferry into Ashland, Ky.

They are believed to be enroute to the home of Mrs. Milam's father, William Shannon, near Pritchard, W. Va., or that of her uncle, James Smith, at Kenova, W. Va.

MARINE OFFICER DIES FROM BURNS

TOKIO, March 1.—First Lieut. John G. Clausling, U. S. Marine Corps, died in the Marine Hospital today from burns received in a fire Sunday in which his Russian wife lost her life.

Evidence at the inquest of his wife was of a sensational nature, centering on an unexplained fracture of her skull. The coroner's jury had adjourned the inquest to await Clausling's testimony. The couple was reported to have been trapped by the fire while in bed at their residence.

TEN SOUGHT IN MURDER SLAIN

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—Ten members of the band of outlaws who kidnaped C. C. Aisthorpe and J. M. Underwood, Americans, last week and murdered them, were killed by federal troops, Col. Bonifacio Salinas of Guanajuato reported to the government last night.

The official dispatch described the bandits as "fanatics."

Aisthorpe and Underwood were found dead near Guanajuato by federal troops immediately after they had effected a contract with bandits.

The Americans were kidnaped from the Guanajuato Mines and Reduction Company and ransom of $7,500 was asked for them. The Mexican government sent troops in pursuit of the bandits at the request of the United States government.

CONGRESS PREPARES FOR QUIET CLOSING OF SHORT SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 1.—With the legislative slate cleaner than had been anticipated, congressional leaders were preparing today for a peaceful closing of the short session of the seventieth congress.

The one remaining filibuster was to be staged in the senate this afternoon against the house bill extending the life of the radio commission another year, but Senator Watson of Indiana, in charge of the measure, is not worried. He has a cloture petition which probably will be clapped on debate Saturday, forcing a vote.

The Jones bill increasing the penalties for liquor law violators was on its way to the president for signature. The second deficiency bill with the more important last minute appropriations was in conference. The house leaders were considering reviving the old first deficiency appropriation with prospects the senate would abandon its long fight for the $24,000,000 prohibition enforcement increase and accept the house provision for an increase of nearly $3,000,000 which President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon say is sufficient.

The reappointment bill is definitely dead in the senate. The nomination of Irvin Lenroot of Wisconsin to be member of the United States court of customs appeals is being so vigorously opposed, the leaders have about decided to let it drop, fearing if they press it they will disrupt the whole peace program.

After the radio bill is out of the way there will be little of importance, and both houses plan to spend their time cleaning the calendars of the hundreds of pending claims bills, most of which are inconsequential. If necessary, there may be a Sunday session of both houses to get these bills through.

No plans are being made for further night sessions.

The house was to spend the day debating several judgements and other minor bills.

DRY AGENTS ARREST THIRTEEN PERSONS IN ELMWOOD PLACE

Seventeen "Home-Brew" Places Are
Raided

CINCINNATI, O., March 1.—As residents of the village of Elmwood Place were preparing for their usual quiet evening last night, an army of fifty-eight prohibition agents descended and seventeen places known to the villagers as "home brew joints" were raided. Thirteen persons were arrested and charged with violating the national prohibition act. Among them was Charles Behrens, one of the two night policemen of the village.

Warrants were issued charging six other persons with violations. Seven others were taken to federal prohibition headquarters but were released after being questioned. These proved to be customers, waiters and persons attracted by the noise of the raiders. The thirteen against whom charges were filed were taken to the first district police station to await a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Harry Neal Smith today.

The raid was the first official act of G. J. Simons who took office yesterday as assistant prohibition commissioner of the Ohio-Indiana district.

The agents who participated in the raids were brought to Cincinnati from Cleveland, Columbus and Indiana, yesterday afternoon. Fourteen state agents who assisted were under the direction of Rupert R. Beetham, state prohibition director. All left town immediately after turning in their prisoners.

Simons is best known here for his activities in the Remus case. He led the squad of Indiana agents who swept down on George Remus' famous whiskey cutting plant in "Death Valley" in Westwood in 1922 and gathered the evidence which later sent Remus and his gang to the federal penitentiary.

ELEVEN DIE IN COAST STORMS

PARIS, March 1.—Eleven persons lost their lives in storms along the French coast yesterday and last night.

Fishing smacks suffered heavily from the storms and many were wrecked. The wrecks resulted in drownings of five fishermen near Dunkerque, three off Quimper, and three off Sables Dolonne.

XENIA LOSES TO STIVERS

Dayton Stivers ran true to form and registered its expected victory over Xenia Central High's basketball quintet in the first round of the Class A division of the sectional state tournament at Memorial Hall, Springfield, Friday afternoon, winning by a margin of 45 to 11.

By virtue of its victory, the Orange Crusader advanced to the second round and will clash with the winner of the Bellefontaine-Fairview game at 3:45 p. m. Saturday. The defeat meant elimination for the Buccaneers from the tourney.

Stivers led 7 to 1 the first quarter, 17 to 7 at the half and 32 to 9 the third period.

In the opening Class A tourney game early in the afternoon, Dayton Kiser eliminated Greenville, 22 to 17, and will have Urbana, which drew a first round bye, as its opponent in the second round at 2:50 a. m. Saturday.

STATE QUARANTINE AFFECTS TOWNSHIPS IN GREENE COUNTY

Six townships in Greene County come under the quarantine ordered established by Perry L. Green, state director of agriculture, effective Friday, March 1, in an effort to combat the injurious insect known as the European corn borer.

The townships in Greene County affected by the ruling are: Bath, Miami, Beaver Creek, Xenia, Ross and Cedarville.

Although the corn borer is new to and not widely disseminated in Ohio, it exists within certain counties in the state, Director Green announces.

Under the order, removal to any other portion of the state of corn, broom corn, all sorghums and Sudan grass, except the grain or seeds thereof when properly cleaned, grown in any of the counties included in the quarantine, is prohibited.

Nothing in the order shall be construed, however, to prevent the free movement of the plants and plant products covered by this quarantine from point to point within the quarantined area.

The ruling also provides that plants and plant products covered by this quarantine which originate outside of the quarantined area, may be moved through it when accompanied by a valid permit issued by a duly authorized inspector at a point of origin. Such permits will be used only for shipments which are not infested with the corn borer.

WITHDRAWS NAME AS CANDIDATE FOR SOCIAL WORK HERE

Mrs. Marie Meshell Bell, 123 W. Third St., who was recommended for appointment as executive secretary of the combined Social Service League and Red Cross by the joint committee named for that purpose, has withdrawn her name from further consideration. The committee recommended appointment of Mrs. Bell to the joint committee of the two organizations this week, but final approval was withheld while the appointment was referred for approval to the individual boards of each organization. Her withdrawal came before action of the individual boards was made known. In withdrawing her application for the position, Mrs. Bell issued a statement in which she thanked her friends for their unsolicited support of her candidacy. The withdrawal of Mrs. Bell's name leaves the joint committee still in a quandary regarding selection of a secretary, while the proposed merger cannot be consummated until such an appointment is made. Representatives of both organizations say that the organizations will begin to function jointly from a single office, as soon as the appointment of a secretary is agreed upon. Early action on this matter is being urged in order that the combined societies may begin operation under the new plan.

MANY a man owes his daily fitness, his success, to the wife who sees that "he takes good care of himself." She watches that he gets enough sleep, takes enough time to eat. She acts as family physician with every meal she serves. And often as not, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is her trusted ally.

For this healthful cereal has been adopted by countless women as the surest, easiest way to insure plenty of daily roughage, lacking in so many foods.

They know how important roughage is. In safeguarding their families from constipation they are responsible for their own happier homes. Constipation is the bane of thousands. It attacks health. Ruins youth. Saps energy. Too often it brings serious disease. And yet it is easy to prevent. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed.

Why ALL-BRAN is so effective

Bulk or roughage relieves constipation naturally. ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. This bulk absorbs moisture and distributes it through the digestive system. Gently distending the intestines—exercising them—which sometimes injure the system. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an inviting cereal to eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Sprinkle it into soups too. Use it in cooking—recipes on package. Mix it with other cereals. Eat two table-spoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. If you will serve it in some form regularly, you will surely protect your family from dread constipation.

ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, cafeterias. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

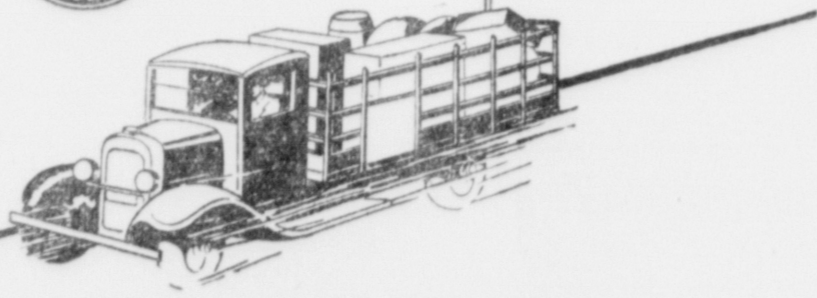

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

THE RECORD - BREAKING NEW NASH "400"

Of all the New Cars at the Motor Show Only the New NASH "400" offers these outstanding features as standard equipment ... without extra cost ...

Twin-Ignition Motor

Far more power and speed with greater economy of gasoline than possible with single ignition. At every speed this new Nash Twin-Ignition motor delivers wonderful performance. Instant, alert get-away and surpassing smoothness through the full range of power and speed.

Bijur Centralized Lubrication

Press a pedal and 21 points, including all spring shackles, are oiled automatically and instantly under 100 pounds pressure. Saves both your time and money. One of the greatest features of convenience and economy ever presented to motorists.

Houdaille Shock Absorbers

These Houdailles are especially engineered by Nash to the new "400" with outboard mounting, new to the industry and exclusive to Nash. They are double-acting—softening the action of the springs both when they are depressed and rebounding and giving you fullest riding ease.

Front and Rear Bumpers

These are the finest bumpers built, exceptionally beautiful and strong. They are integrally designed by Nash to harmonize perfectly with the new "400" Salon body design. As regular equipment at no extra cost, they contribute to the remarkably low Nash price, delivered, in this city.

World's Easiest Driver Control

We challenge the world on this new "400" feature. Nowhere is there another car so marvelously easy to steer and turn and park, or with such effortless clutch action as the new Nash "400". Nash is far ahead of the industry in ease of driver control.

7-Bearing Crankshaft

This is the world's finest practice—expensive but worth it—because of finer performance than is possible with fewer bearings. Each connecting rod is given maximum support by big bearings on both sides. This is the modern type of engineering.

Refreshing Comfort

The deep, soft cushions, formed to the body, the wide seats, the roominess of the Nash "400" interior, all help to bring you to the end of every ride refreshed beyond anything in your whole motor car experience. On the longest trip you rest as you ride.

Costly Car Interior Finish

Costly upholstery and luxurious craftsmanship distinguish the new Nash "400" interiors at once from competitive cars. You can see the difference the instant you open the door. Nash "400" interior finish is matched only by the very highest-priced cars.

Columbus Lady Had Lost 52 Pounds—Never Expected To Walk But New Medicine Restores Health

"I shall never be able to give Konjola the limitless praise it deserves," said Mrs. Priscella Vancovorden, 260 West Park Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

"Four years ago I was stricken with a rheumatic affliction, which the doctors pronounced arthritis. For three months I laid on my back in the hospital and thought that I should never walk again. For six months my elbows and knees were so sore and stiff I could not move them. My weight decreased from 172 to 120 pounds. All medicines and treatments were just so much time and effort wasted. Indigestion and insomnia beset me too, but these were insignificant compared to my helpless condition.

"Konjola was recommended very strongly, but I had little confidence. How could one medicine help me when most elaborate treatments had failed utterly? But Konjola, wonderful medicine that it is, went at once to the very causes of my terrible affliction. Ten bottles of this remedy removed every trace of my ailments. Recently I made a tour of Europe and you may be quite sure that several bottles of Konjola made up one of the most important items in my basket. Konjola is now a life long friend of mine."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experiences with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Farmer Finds Treasure Buried In Barn For Nearly a Century

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

INTERLACKEN, N. Y., Feb. 28.—From one of the dilapidated and long neglected barns near here comes the story of the discovery of gold and gems buried nearly a century. It is a new type of treasure-trove tale to rival the stories which link pirate gold and the southern coast.

All for no particular reason at all, Will Eastman, a farmer, took to digging in one of the corners of a barn which long has been an eyesore. Suddenly he uncovered a marble urn.

Eastman is not a man who looks for romance in the prosaic routine of farm work, and so he wasn't sure if everything was right with himself when he found within the present.

DIVISION HIGHWAY ENGINEER APPOINTED TO SUCCEED WALSH

Appointment of Roy E. Miller, Lebanon, as division engineer of division No. 8 of the department of highways and public works, succeeding Henry W. Walsh, Xenia, was announced Friday by State Highway Director Robert N. Wald.

Miller is a graduate of Ohio State University. The district includes Greene, Hamilton, Clermont, Clinton, Warren, Montgomery, Preble and Butler Counties.

Walsh, the retiring division engineer, was promoted to the position two years ago, succeeding H. A. Nunlist, after serving as assistant division engineer under a Democratic administration for three and one-half years.

Walsh was selected by G. F. Schlesinger, former Xenian and former state highway director, while holding the position from which he now retires, Walsh maintained his residence in Xenia while maintaining office headquarters at Cincinnati, as required of the division engineer.

The appointment of Miller is said to become effective March 15.

Walsh has not announced his future plans.

Walsh is a native of Greene County and has been connected with the state highway department for about seven years.

He completed his engineering course at the University of Dayton and was connected both with the Dayton city engineer's office and the Montgomery County surveyor's office for a time after graduation.

In 1920 he was appointed deputy surveyor of Greene County and spent two and one-half years in this capacity, supervising maintenance of Greene County highways.

He was later appointed district superintendent of maintenance with the division of highways, having charge of Greene, Clinton and Warren Counties, and held this post a year before his selection as first assistant to Division Engineer Nunlist.

Farmer Finds Treasure Buried In Barn For Nearly a Century

Exclusive Centra Press Dispatch to Gazette

INTERLACKEN, N. Y., Feb. 28.—From one of the dilapidated and long neglected barns near here comes the story of the discovery of gold and gems buried nearly a century. It is a new type of treasure-trove tale to rival the stories which link pirate gold and the southern coast.

All for no particular reason at all, Will Eastman, a farmer, took to digging in one of the corners of a barn which long has been an eyesore. Suddenly he uncovered a marble urn.

Eastman is not a man who looks for romance in the prosaic routine of farm work, and so he wasn't sure if everything was right with himself when he found within the present.

urn a fortune in gold coins and precious stones.

Eastman is having a jeweler appraise the gems and is reticent about clearing up rumors as to the amount of gold—he really is too much occupied with trying to discover whether he has a legal claim to his find!

In the urn were two cards, but neither contributed much toward the solution of the mystery. One reads: "The heart will with its treasure be; be faithful until death, 1838." The other reads: "William Smart, stonemason, New Road, Spalding, Lincolnshire—for Charlotte Barnard, Billington, Lincolnshire."

There are no families of Smarts or Barnards in this section at present.

DIVISION HIGHWAY ENGINEER APPOINTED TO SUCCEED WALSH

Appointment of Roy E. Miller, Lebanon, as division engineer of Division No. 8 of the department of highways and public works, succeeding Henry W. Walsh, Xenia, was announced Friday by State Highway Director Robert N. Wald.

Miller is a graduate of Ohio State University. The district includes Greene, Hamilton, Clermont, Clinton, Warren, Montgomery, Probosc and Butler Counties.

Walsh, the retiring division engineer, was promoted to the position two years ago, succeeding H. A. Nunlist, after serving as assistant division engineer under a Democratic administration for three and one-half years.

Walsh was selected by G. F. Schlesinger, former Xenian and former state highway director. While holding the position from which he now retires, Walsh maintained his residence in Xenia while maintaining office headquarters at Cincinnati, as required of the division engineer.

The appointment of Miller is said to become effective March 15.

Walsh has not announced his future plans.

Walsh is a native of Greene County and has been connected with the state highway department for about seven years.

He completed his engineering course at the University of Dayton and was connected both with the Dayton city engineer's office and the Montgomery County surveyor's office for a time after graduation. In 1920 he was appointed deputy surveyor of Greene County and spent two and one-half years in this capacity, supervising maintenance of Greene County highways.

He was later appointed district superintendent of maintenance with the division of highways, having charge of Greene, Clinton and Warren Counties, and held this post a year before his selection as first assistant to Division Engineer Nunlist.

GLIDER SETS NEW RECORD

LOS ANGELES, March 1.—A new world's distance record of 175 miles for a glider towed by an airplane was claimed today by Dale Drake, whose trip from Sheep Camp to Long Beach ended in a San Fernando Valley barley field yesterday.

Drake was being towed over Santa Susanna pass at an elevation of 7200 feet when the tow rope snapped. The pass below of fered no landing place and he started a twelve mile coast to the metropolitan airport at Van Uys.

Drake fell two miles short of the Metropolitan airport and landed in the plowed field after a glide of ten miles.

"It was a dandy trip and I was all ready to continue on to Long Beach, but we couldn't get going again. We will today."

The tow-plane, piloted by Lloyd O'Donnell, of Long Beach, landed at Metropolitan airport.

He flew to the barley field and tried to take off to travel the remaining twenty-five miles to Long

SIXTEEN MILLION SPENT IN CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The recent presidential campaign cost $16,586,115, of which $9,433,661 was spent by the Republicans and $7,152,511 by the Democrats, the Steiwer investigating committee reported to the senate today. The committee made recommendations for corrective legislation to enable closer supervision of campaign funds.

The largest amount raised by any state organization was the $1,003,000 contributed by Republicans in Pennsylvania, compared with $29,363 contributed to the Democratic state organization there. The largest amount spent was $924,000 by Republicans in New York compared with 745,000 spent by Democrats there.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE WORD THAT BREAKS AND BURNS.—Is not my word like a fire? saith the Lord; and like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces.—Jeremiah 23:29.

NEW GIANT INDUSTRY COMING

The day of the flivver airplane is not far off, writes Roger W. Babson, famous business and industrial expert.

In giving a blueprint of the future use of airplanes, Mr. Babson assumes the development of a helicopter which will enable a plane to rise straight up, hover at a given spot, make a slow vertical descent—and possibly perform as a parachute when the power is cut off.

"This will be the master key," says Mr. Babson, writing in "The Forum." "Other key inventions may be as follows. The planes or blades can be folded up as a grasshopper folds its wings. A pontoon construction will permit landing and locomotion on water or on snow. The landing wheels may be power driven, so that the machine can be operated on the road like an automobile. For example, after flying to a city, it will be possible to land outside its limits and then use the plane as an automobile. Fundamentally this is the flivver airplane which I visualize. Granting the possibility of such a design, we can foresee an industry of giant size. Moreover, it will have profound effects upon human life, equal to or even greater than the vast changes which can be traced to the automobile industry.

"Some houses will have roof garages, reached by automatic electric elevators. Once discovered, the roof may be utilized for other purposes in addition to that of garage. In our big cities there are millions of square feet of roof area that are now an economic waste. We complain about lack of room, but there is still room at the top.

"These changes, however, seem trifling in comparison with other tremendous readjustments in living conditions resulting from the flivver airplane. We get a glimpse of these possibilities by observing what the automobile has accomplished. The automobile has created the suburbs. The airplane will create the countryside. People who used to live in the city now live ten miles out in the suburbs. People who now live in the suburbs will live fifty miles out in the countryside."

If these anticipations are realized, continues Mr. Babson, a mammoth and varied volume of construction is on the horizon.

The conquest of the skies will result in rebuilding the face of the earth.

$8,000,000 FOR BIRDS

The federal migratory bird bill passed by the House is re-assuring to bird-lovers, scientists and fair-minded sportsmen.

It establishes a national system of refuges to protect migratory birds of all kinds. It goes farther, logically forbidding the establishment of hunting grounds adjacent to refuges. The lack of such a provision in the past has made some refuges almost useless, because the birds were either shot by hunters as soon as they crossed the line, or were scared away by the sound of guns near by.

A proposal for federal hunting licenses was turned down. That also seems proper. Licenses may well be left to the states, with the federal government merely doing what the separate states cannot do so well for bird protection.

In the next 10 years the government will spend $8,000,000 in this work. It is little enough. The benefits may be a hundred times the cost.

Your BROADWAY And Mine
By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK. — It happened at Miss Guinan's place about five years ago, she says. The president of a big tobacco company came into her cafe and urged her to take care of a small package. The same night a free-for-all fight frightened the magnate away, and he left without his parcel. Miss G. handed it to the cloak-keeper. A week later it was returned to her and she brought it home, leaving it on her dresser for several months unclaimed. Then it was brought back to the night club, where the doorman placed it in his locker.

A half year later the capitalist, who had been to Yurroff, happened into the cafe. "Good heavens," cried Miss Guinan, "where've you been? I still have your package." "What package?" asked the puzzled magnate, and then she produced it for him. "I don't remember leaving a package here," he said as he opened it before the various persons who minded it all that time.

It revealed one thousand twenty-dollar bills!

THE WAGES OF CYNICISM
What happens to marriages when one or the other's infidelity is discovered is logically and amusingly explained by Rachael Crothers via her new comedy, "Let Us Be Gay." John Golden has deposited it at the Little Theatre.

It keeps the listeners in a jubilant mood almost throughout the proceedings, for it is an unusually gay piece, but Miss Crothers, who fashions flappancies and pert remarks for the edification of the sophisticates, cleverly arranges a series of sentimentalities, which

The Players and the Lambs, two of the tonier actor organizations, exclude dramatic critics from membership. Only one New York dramatic departmental head is a member of the Players. He is Arthur Folwell of the Herald Tribune, but he was a member of the club before he became a drama ditor.

He is also the only dramatic editor in New York who has never "covered" a play, which is one of the reasons Mr. Folwell is very popular on Broadway.

Among other things that make paragraphs are the two fellows who stand on the roof of the big Edison sub-station in East 42nd street. One looks at the smoke and the other looks at the clouds. CITY BUSINESS

The city manager of a middle-western town tells the world that during the first year of operation under city manager plan the town not only lived within its income, but had a balance of $20,000. Either something very good here, or something very wrong. Perhaps the city ought to have spent a lot of money. Perhaps more vision would have put it badly and properly in debt. Whether a city ought to live on its income depends on what it has to show for its economy.

ALL FOR A CONG

Headlines tell of a man who lost his life defending eighteen dollars. Perhaps he was a hero; perhaps not. Every day some of us are putting up a great fight over eighteen dollars. We are so intense about it that we would almost lose our lives for the sake of winning something or other. So many things are in the eighteen dollar class—and we are willing to fight over them. There are things worth losing one's life for. They are few. Not many things are even worth losing our balance for.

PROPERTY RECOVERED IN OIL RESERVE SUITS MADE KNOWN

By CURTIS D. WILBUR
Secretary of the Navy
(Curtis Dwight Wilbur was born at Boonesboro, Ia., May 10, 1867. He is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and holds honorary degrees from three other universities. He resigned from the navy in 1888 and began the practice of law at Los Angeles. From 1899 to 1902 he was chief deputy district attorney for Los Angeles county; then served as judge of the superior court for 15 years. In 1919 he was made associate justice of the supreme court of California, three years later being named chief justice. He was appointed secretary of the navy in 1924.)

The United States government has recovered, as a result of litigation involving the naval oil reserves, a total of $47,137,696.28 in tangible and intangible assets. As a result of the decision of the supreme court of the United States on February 23, 1927, covering leases and contracts of the Pan-American Petroleum company on Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1, at Elk Hills, Cal., the United States came into possession of cash and properties amounting to $34,891,449.62, according to the statement.

From the Teapot Dome litigation, involving Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 3, in Wyoming, which had been leased by the Mammoth Oil company, the United States received judgments amounting to $12,156,246.66. Of the total $3,653,512.39 is still due the government. The following sums have been paid or are payable to the United States treasury as a result of this decision:

Amount turned in by receivers, cash and bonds, $3,092,734.27; amount due for oil taken from Reserve prior to receivership but not yet paid, together with interest to June 1, 1925, $3,953,121.39; total cash, $6,045,855.66. In addition the United States has become possessor of a result of this suit, of the land itself, comprising 9,281 acres of valuable oil land, improvements thereon which cost the lessee approximately $5,000,000, and tanks and other improvements made by the Mammoth Oil company at the Fortsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard at a cost of $1,100,000. This is detailed as follows:

Turned in by receivers, cash and bonds, $3,092,734.27; amount due for oil taken from reserve prior to receivership but not yet paid, together with interest to June 1, 1925, $3,953,121.39; improvements made by defendant on lease, approximately, $5,000,000; tanks and other improvements made by defendant at Fortsmouth, N. THE NATIONAL PASTIME

How to Achieve Beauty
BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Regal splendor seems to have no place in our domestic, modern America. Romance and adventure we have in plenty. The romance of business, travel and love. The adventure of great achievements—feats of our navigators on the sea and in the air. But royalty, and the lavish display of courts and kings, belong to other countries, other times, and in the occasional artistic effects we achieve in our theaters, or in the clothes and decorative backgrounds of some beautiful, queenly women.

There are American women who have the bearing of queens. Tall, regal, splendid. They are of the patrician type, vaguely recalling the days of old Rome with marble columns, wide naves and classic draperies.

But this type of woman today may think her proportions and her general effect out of key with the swift, modern styles of living and dressing; the slim, raptorial women who move so quickly around her. Actually her distinction and difference are a powerful charm. But she must play up her type and accent it, never try to make herself into something she cannot be.

This type of woman is tall, often large in build. Because of her height, she may be inclined to stoop a little in her constant association with men and women who are shorter. She should watch this tendency and correct it. The proud poise of her head and a dignified, gracious carriage are assets of her type. She need not, literally speaking, ever "stoop to conquer."

As to her figure, unless she is definitely fat, burdened with excess pads of flesh, the tall, queenly woman should not reduce to bring herself within the increasing ranks of the thin woman.

There is no beauty in over-thinness, and for the large-boned woman, especially, dieting toward thinness is very like to result in an effect of gauntness and emaciation. She needs soft, mellowed outlines, beautiful, curving contours. She should exercise, however, regularly and often, to keep her figure firm and well proportioned, her movements graceful. Dancing of the rhythmic type, and swimming, as well as horseback riding, are the best exercises for her.

Because of the perfect classical, clear-cut impression which her regal loveliness should always make, this woman must carefully watch her facial contours. No sagging muscles or drooping chin should be allowed to mar her distinguished outlines.

In make-up, she should keep to the simple, delicately enhancing effects which will emphasize her porcelain or faintly olive-toned skin. If she is inclined to be florid in coloring, she must tone down her make-up, use faint green or lavender powder in the evening, a soft raspberry lip rouge, and definite eye make-up in the tones that suit her hair and eye color.

Velvet is the material par excellence for this queenly type to wear. And dignified, exquisite lace. Broadcloth and smooth materials for the winter street mode and the close, fashionable, rich-looking furs. In the evening she wears satin well, or velvet again, and brocade. In the summer, her colors are plain street shades, pastel shades and white.

Always, in her clothes, in her make-up and in her levels, which she wears better than any other type, the regal, patrician woman must strike the note of dignity, restraint, simple elegance and richness. Her beauty requires and rewards perfection in care.

be filled from the G. O. P. south, they tell me.

Not that any cleaning out of our present veterans is forecast, or that Dixie is to get every single vacancy, but retirements and changes do occur from time to time, and the southland is not to be forgotten in the making of replacements, according to this story.

The thing sounds logical. Southern Republicans have been kept so knocked over the nose that hardly any of them are politically big enough to claim cabinet honors. (True, one of them is supposed to be slated for a portfolio, but certainly not more than one.) And naturally they can't hope to be elected to anything in that part of the country—not without a lot more missionary work, anyway.

An assistant secretaryship should look far more enticing to a southern G. O. P.ite than to a northern one.

Trust this next administration not to overlook any useful by-products!

Cabbage Salad with Raw Apples and Carrots
Caramel Sponge Cake
Tea or Coffee

Included in today's recipes is a new sponge cake recipe which I am sure you will like. Three people can be fed on the one and one-half pounds of round steak used in the recipe, so figure your quantities accordingly.

Today's Recipes

Swiss Steak in Casserole.—One and one-half pounds round steak, flour, one onion, one small carrot, salt, paprika, one cup boiling water. Pound into the steak as much flour as it will hold. Sear in hot fat. Add the onion and carrot. Place in the casserole with the salt, paprika and the boiling water and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) until tender, about one hour.

Caramel Sponge Cake.—Put a quarter cupful of sugar in a frying pan and caramelize it until of a brown color. Add one-half cup boiling water and three-quarters cupful of sugar. Boil this syrup until it threads. Beat five egg yolks in a bowl with a dash of salt, until thick. Add the syrup very slowly, beating meanwhile, then gradually add a cupful of flour which has been measured, one-quarter teaspoon of salt added, and then sifted three times. Add a half teaspoon of vanilla. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and bake in a tube loaf pan about fifty minutes in a slow oven.

SERVE THESE TO YOUR FRIENDS AT LUNCHEON RYE RUSKS

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Two cups rye flour, one-half cup Graham flour, one cup wheat flour, one teaspoon salt. Stir together and add one-half cup sugar, a heaping tablespoon butter, one cake compressed yeast dissolved in warm pressed milk enough to make a soft batter. Put in a warm place to rise. When light add one cup seeded raisins. Let rise again, bake in muffin pans.

FEATURES

Diet and Health
BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

"1. Why do you advise those of us who are reducing to eat very little salt? 2. Does it do any harm if one finds it easy to go without breakfast, to omit that and to take the 1,200 calories or so in the other meals? 3. I have been on your diet for three weeks. The first week, I went on the semi-liquid diet for three days, and lost but two pounds. The second week I almost fell off the scales when, although I had eaten more, I discovered I had lost five pounds! This week I have lost but two pounds again, for I had a cold, and, as you advise, I went back to the maintenance diet."

Answers: 1. The majority of us eat too much salt anyway. We need 20 to 30 grains a day and we take four times that amount. The reason I advise those who are reducing to cut salt down is that it causes the body tissues to hold water, and this, of course, keeps the weight higher; and too much salt is an irritant to the kidneys and blood vessels.

2. Yes, I think it is alright to omit breakfast if you find you do not care for it. I myself haven't had anything but a cup of coffee or tea for breakfast for years. (A cup of fruit juice would be better.) Many persons seem to be benefited by the no-breakfast plan, especially if inclined to overeating. However, there is no need of going without breakfast even if you are overweight, if you don't exceed your reducing number of calories during the day. With some it is more convenient to have a fair-sized breakfast and no lunch (or perhaps a little fruit), and a good-sized dinner in the evening.

3. The day before your official weighing, it is necessary to have the same number of calories and the same type of food that you weigh at the same time of day. Otherwise you cannot judge the relationship between your calorie intake and what you have lost, due to the water balance factor.

We have an article on Blood Pressure and a pamphlet giving instructions on losing and gaining.

A.—The itching you complain of may be due to irritating urine or possibly to pin worms. Sometimes the cause cannot be determined, and these cases are oftentimes cured by the X-ray.

I suggest you have a complete physical examination. A., including urine and feces analyses, and see if the cause cannot be detected. Until that is done, try very hot compresses, frequently applied, followed with an application of carbolized vaseline.

"Can you tell me what to do for a sensitive nose? I sneeze and seem to have the worst headache when riding on trains and sometimes in autos from the dust, also from anything frying on the stove. I contract cold very easily. Can this be due to sensitiveness? Would hay fever be a cause of a sensitive nose?"

A.—Yes, A. Those suffering from hay fever are, for some reason, upset by pollens or dust or different animal emanations, or from foods that do not cause any trouble in others. Just what causes this sensitiveness is not known, but there is probably some undermining of the resistance, either through wrong hygienic habits or infected spots in the body. Asthma is also frequently caused by this sensitiveness. This, with hives and other skin eruptions are known as allergic manifestations. There are physicians who specialize in these diseases.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Living and Loving
BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The modern girl speaks for herself in the following letter. Do you recognize her in yourself, your daughter, your sweetheart? And how does she qualify? Would you exchange her for the old-fashioned type who guiltily dabbed a bit of powder on her nose in secret and occasionally acknowledged to her most intimate friend that she HAD just tried to smoke a cigarette just for fun? She wanted to see what the men saw in the habit.

"Dear Virginia Lee: This is just another letter on that much discussed subject, the flapper girl of today. I'm a girl 20 years old. I wear the latest styles, use powder, rouge and lipstick. I smoke and take a drink when the occasion calls, but I can really say it's the best.

I can cook, sew and keep house. What troubles me most is that I am called a flapper. I really don't mind being CALLED one, but some people think that a flapper is a scandalous sort of person. But under the flapper's paint and dress, she has a heart of gold—I mean nearly all of them have. For there is some bad in all of us. Some things the flapper does are unexcusable. They can't expect us to think good clean things about them if they pick up boys at dance halls. They don't have to pet to be popular. Girls, leave married men alone. You are trespassing on some one else's property.

"A TRUE LOVER."
Not a bit, my dear boy. I know two happy couples intimately where the wives are both more than two years older than their husbands.

trespassing on some one else's property.

"I would also like to say a few words to the flapper haters. Really, boys, did you ever stop to think that such boys as yourselves are to blame for what some of these modern girls do? You won't go out with a certain girl because she's slow; then, when she tries to learn your game you say she is red hot and you hate all flappers. Suppose when you take girls out you treat them as you would have boys treat your sister.

"Virginia, I wish you would please publish this letter if you think it is all right. I am a high school graduate and am training to be a nurse.

"GIRL FRIEND."

Thanks, Girl Friend, you modern girls always have a champion in me, you know.

MR. PARROT SOLVES THE PUZZLE

The newcomer chuckled hoarsely, and fixed his twinkling eyes upon the boy. "So you are surprised, are you? Of course it was I calling you. Who else could it be? You see nobody about, do you?"

"No, but—my mother—how could you?—when did you?—that is, where have you?"

It all seemed queer to Peter, and the more he tried to say the more mixed up did he become. The strange parrot, feeling sorry for the boy, interrupted his stammering.

"I suppose you mean to ask me how I am able to make my voice sound like your mother's?"

"Yes, and how in the world do you know my name? I have never met you before, have I?" the boy demanded.

The parrot shook his head. "No, you have never really met me, boy," said he, "but I have seen you lots and lots of times. You see, I was your Polly's sweetheart. Don't you remember?"

cuddling up against Polly just as close as you could get, and she was scratching your head with her bill and talking to you in a low voice."

The parrot nodded his head mournfully.

"Yes," said he, "that is exactly the way. Polly was always trying to make me comfortable, and if there was anything in the world that I liked, it was to have my head scratched.

"Polly, Polly, poor, pretty Polly! To think that she had to come to such a sad end. When I heard what had happened I was as near as I dared to the crow's nest and gave Mrs. Crow a piece of my mind. I can tell you, I'll bet you she never forgets what I told her—the horrid, black thing."

I should like to have thrown Mrs. Crow's babies out of the nest, but they were up so high in a rickety branch that I couldn't get at them, and anyhow, those old crows had a sentinel on guard all the time and they would have spied me before I got anywhere near the nest.

"It wouldn't have done my poor Polly any good for a crowd of black crows to have pecked me to pieces, now, would it? I am too fine a gentleman to have my coat torn up, my feathers plucked out and scattered to the four winds."

Pot Roast—Wipe the meat, dredge with flour, salt and pepper. Sear in hot fat, add enough boiling water to cover, boil five minutes and simmer until the meat is tender, keeping closely covered. Vegetables may be added during the last hour of cooking. Bay leaf, thyme or oregano herbs may be added if desired. Before serving thicken according to method for gravy.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE WORD THAT BREAKS AND BURNS.—Is not my word like a fire? saith the Lord; and like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces.—Jeremiah 23:29.

NEW GIANT INDUSTRY COMING

The day of the flivver airplane is not far off, writes Roger W. Babson, famous business and industrial expert.

In giving a blueprint of the future use of airplanes, Mr. Babson assumes the development of a helicopter which will enable a plane to rise straight up, hover at a given spot, make a slow vertical descent—and possibly perform as a parachute when the power is cut off.

"This will be the master key," says Mr. Babson, writing in "The Forum." "Other key inventions may be as follows. The planes or blades can be folded up as a grasshopper folds its wings. A pontoon construction will permit landing and locomotion on water or on snow. The landing wheels may be power driven, so that the machine can be operated on the road like an automobile. For example, after flying to a city, it will be possible to land outside its limits and then use the plane as an automobile. Fundamentally this is the flivver airplane which I visualize. Granting the possibility of such a design, we can foresee an industry of giant size. Moreover, it will have profound effects upon human life, equal to or even greater than the vast changes which can be traced to the automobile industry.

"Some houses will have roof garages, reached by automatic electric elevators. Once discovered, the roof may be utilized for other purposes in addition to that of garage. In our big cities there are millions of square feet of roof area that are now an economic waste. We complain about lack of room, but there is still room at the top.

"These changes, however, seem trifling in comparison with other tremendous readjustments in living conditions resulting from the flivver airplane. We get a glimpse of these possibilities by observing what the automobile has accomplished. The automobile has created the suburbs. The airplane will create the countryside. People who used to live in the city now live ten miles out in the suburbs. People who now live in the suburbs will live fifty miles out in the countryside."

If these anticipations are realized, continues Mr. Babson, a mammoth and varied volume of construction is on the horizon.

The conquest of the skies will result in rebuilding the face of the earth.

$8,000,000 FOR BIRDS

The federal migratory bird bill passed by the House is reassuring to bird-lovers, scientists and fair-minded sportsmen.

It establishes a national system of refuges to protect migratory birds of all kinds. It goes farther, logically forbidding the establishment of hunting grounds adjacent to refuges. The lack of such a provision in the past has made some refuges almost useless, because the birds were either shot by hunters as soon as they crossed the line, or were scared away by the sound of guns near by.

A proposal for federal hunting licenses was turned down. That also seems proper. Licenses may well be left to the states, with the federal government merely doing what the separate states cannot do so well for bird protection.

In the next 10 years the government will spend $8,000,000 in this work. It is little enough. The benefits may be a hundred times the cost.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK. — It happened at Miss Guinan's place about five years ago, she says. The president of a big tobacco company came into her cafe and urged her to take care of a small package. The same night a free-for-all fight frightened the magnate away, and he left without his parcel. Miss G. handed it to the clock-room concessionaire for safe-keeping. A week later it was returned to her and she brought it home, leaving it on her dresser for several months unclaimed. Then it was brought back to the night club, where the doorman placed it in his locker.

A half year later the capitalist, who had been to Yurp, happened into the cafe. "Good heavens!" cried Miss Guinan, "where've you been? I still have your package."

"What package?" asked the puzzled magnate, and then she produced it for him. "I don't remember leaving a package here," he said as he opened it before the various persons who minded it all that time.

It revealed one thousand twenty-dollar bills!

THE WAGES OF CYNICISM

What happens to marriages when one of the other's infidelity is discovered is logically and amusingly explained by Rachel Crothers via her new comedy, "Let Us Be Gay." John Golden has deposited it at the Little Theatre.

It keeps the listeners in a jubilant mood almost throughout the proceedings, for it is an unusually gay piece, but Miss Crothers, who fashions flappancies and pert remarks for the edification of the sophisticates, cleverly arranges a series of sentimentalities, which make a happy combination. There is an abundance of dash to "Let Us Be Gay." The prologue ended, the first act unfolds at a merry pace, with the meaty lines assigned to the immensely comical Charlotte Granville, who runs away with the honors, although Francine Larimore is listed as the featured player.

Fashioned (some of the foyer talkers were saying) after Amy Lowell, "who also carried a cane and smoked cigars," Miss Granville's Mrs. Boucicault rings true. The assignment is responsible for a plentiful supply of merriment, at any rate. Her performance alone, then, is worth the admission tariff.

INCIDENTALLY

The Players and the Lambs, two of the tonier actor organizations, exclude dramatic critics from membership. Only one New York dramatic departmental head is a member of the Players. He is Arthur Folwell of the Herald Tribune, but he was a member of the club before he became a drama critic.

He is also the only dramatic editor in New York who has never "covered" a play, which is one of the reasons Mr. Folwell is very popular on Broadway.

ADD SOFT JOBS

Among other things that make paragraphs are the two fellows who stand on the roof of the big Edison sub-station in East 42nd street. One looks at the smoke and the other looks at the clouds. If either gets too dark, they wire the other stations to be ready for an extra load, and the subscribers begin turning on the lights. That is all they do all day.

CITY BUSINESS

The city manager of a middle-western town tells the world that during the first year of operation under city manager plan the town not only lived within its income, but had a balance of $200,000. Either something very good here, or something very wrong. Perhaps the city ought to have spent a lot of money. Perhaps more vision would have put it badly and properly in debt. Whether a city ought to live on its income depends on what it has to show for its economy.

ALL FOR A CONG

Headlines tell of a man who lost his life defending eighteen dollars. Perhaps he was a hero; perhaps not. Every day some of us are putting up a great fight over eighteen dollars. We are so intense about it that we would almost lose our lives for the sake of winning something or other. So many things are in the eighteen dollar class—and we are willing to fight over them. There are things worth losing one's life for. They are few. Not many things are even worth losing our balance for.

SCOUTS

Not long ago we had a national Boy Scout week. While there may be too many special weeks in the land there is room for a Boy Scout week. Much of the hope of a better day lies in the Scout movement. If the psychologists are right, and it is true that the character of the man is made in boyhood, the Scout organization deserves the loyal, sacrificing effort of grown-ups—not only in special weeks, but always.

RADIO AND AUTO POWER

An automobile manufacturer predicts that the car of the future will be powered with an electric motor which will draw its impulse from a central power station through radio. Well, if each car is to have its own wave length and meter, there is a bad situation ahead. Life is plenty complicated as it is.

PROPERTY RECOVERED IN OIL RESERVE SUITS

MADE KNOWN

By Curtis D. Wilbur

Secretary of the Navy

(Curtis Dwight Wilbur was born at Boonesboro, Ia., May 10, 1867. He is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and holds honorary degrees from three other universities.

He resigned from the navy in 1893 and began the practice of law at Los Angeles. From 1899 to 1903 he was chief deputy district attorney for Los Angeles county; then served as judge of the superior court for 15 years.

In 1919 he was made associate justice of the supreme court of California, three years later being named chief justice. He was appointed secretary of the navy in 1924.)

The United States government has recovered, as a result of litigation involving the naval oil reserves, a total of $4,137,623 in tangible and intangible assets.

As a result of the decision of the supreme court of the United States on February 25, 1927, covering leases and contracts of the Pan-American Petroleum company on Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1, Elk Hills, Cal., the United States came into possession of cash and properties amounting to $4,891,449.62, according to the statement.

From the Teapot Dome litigation, involving Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 3 in Wyoming, which had been leased by the Mammoth Oil company, the United States received judgments amounting to $12,156,246.66. Of the total $3,653,512.39 is still due the government. The following sums have been paid or are payable to the United States treasury as a result of this decision:

Amount turned in by receivers, cash and bonds, $3,002,734.27; amount due for oil taken from Reserve prior to receivership but not yet paid, together with interest to June 1, 1928, $3,952,512.39; total cash, $6,955,246.66.

In addition the United States has become a possessor, as a result of this suit, of the land itself, comprising 9,281 acres of valuable oil land, improvements thereon which cost the lessee approximately $5,000,000, and tanks and other improvements made by the Mammoth Oil company at the Portsmouth N. H. Navy Yard at a cost of $1,100,000. This is listed as follows:

Turned in by receivers, cash and bonds, $3,002,734.27; amount due for oil taken from Reserve prior to receivership but not yet paid, together with interest to June 1, 1928, $3,952,512.39; improvements made by defendant on lease, approximately $5,000,000; tanks and other improvements made by defendant at Portsmouth N. H. Navy Yard, $1,100,000; total, $12,156,246.66.

Clark, Mills, Robbins, Mitchell, Bartlett, Robinson, Finney, Dunlap, Brown and White—that's the list. As will be seen, nobody who is not pretty up-to-date on his official Washington can tell them, which from which.

Don't mistake me. Some of the little cabinet members are among the ablest men in the capital. Nevertheless, there are two reasons why the higher-ups in politics generally steer clear of little cabinet portfolios.

In the first place, a little cabinet job means real hard work. Secondly, a political star of the first magnitude thinks he rates something fancier than an assistant secretaryship. He wants to shine by his own effulgence. If he can't have an out-and-out portfolio, he prefers to run for some showy elective office—assuming, of course, that he believes he can win it. If not, he may take what he can get.

Thus it is that our nation's little cabinet appointments have been largely frittered away on men who have nothing much better to recommend them than mere ability—men who maybe cannot deliver large blocks of votes worth shucks on election day.

But now, as I get the hint, a new use has been discovered for assistant secretaryships, when-ever one falls vacant, which promises to make them very valuable.

A goodly share of them are to

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Regal splendor seems to have no place in our domestic, modern America. Romance and adventure we have in plenty. The romance of business, travel and love. The adventure of great achievements—feats of our navy, our army, our air force, our industry. But royalty, and the lavish display of courts and kings, belong to other countries, other times. We keep it only in our traditions, and in the occasional artistic effects we achieve in our theaters, or in the cloths and decorative backgrounds of some beautiful, queenly women.

There are American women who have the bearing of queens. Tall, regal, splendid. They are of the patrician type, vaguely recalling the days of old Rome with marble columns, wide nalls and classic draperies.

But this type of woman today may think her proportions and her general effect out of key with the swift, modern styles of living and dressing; the slim, raptier-like women who move so quickly around her. Actually her distinction and difference are a powerful charm. But she must play up her type and accent it, never trying to make herself into something she cannot be.

This type of woman is tall, often large in build. Because of her height, she may be inclined to stoop a little in her constant association with men and women who are shorter. She should watch this tendency and correct it. The proud pose of her head and a dignified, gracious carriage are assets of her type. She need not, literally speaking, ever "stoop to conquer."

As to her figure, unless she is definitely fat, burdened with excess pads of flesh, the tall, queenly woman should not reduce to bring herself within the increasing ranks of the thin woman.

Always, in her clothes, in her make-up and in her jewelry, which she wears better than any other type, the regal, patrician woman must strike the note of dignity, restraint, simple elegance and richness. Her beauty requires and rewards perfection in care.

Velvet is the material par excellence for this queenly type to wear. And dignified, exaltate lace, broadcloth and smooth materials for the winter street mode and the close, fashionable, rich-looking furs. In the evening she wears satin well, or velvet again, and brocade. In the summer, her colors are plain steel shades, pastel shades and white.

In make-up, she should keep to the simple, delicately enhancing effects which will emphasize her porcelain or faintly olive-toned skin. If she is inclined to be florid in coloring, she must tone down her make-up, use faint green, lavender powder in the evening, a soft raspberry lip rouge, and definite eye make-up to the tone that suits her hair and eye colors.

THE NATIONAL PASTIME

be filled from the G. O. P. south, they tell me.

Not that any cleaning out of our present veterans is forecast, or that Dixie is to get every single vacancy, but retirements and changes do occur from time to time, and the southland is not to be forgotten in the making of replacements, according to this story.

The thing sounds logical. Southern Republicans have been kept so knocked over the nose that hardly any of them are politically big enough to claim cabinet honors. (True, one of them is supposed to be slated for a portfolio, but certainly not more than one.) And naturally they can't hope to be elected to anything in that part of the country—not without a lot more missionary work, anyway.

An assistant secretaryship should look far more enticing to a southern G. O. P.-ite than to a northern one.

Trust this next administration not to overlook any useful by-products!

Included in today's recipes is a new sponge cake recipe which I am sure you will like. Three people can be fed on the one and one-half pounds of round steak used in the recipe, so figure your quantities accordingly.

Today's Recipes

Swiss Steak in Casserole.—One and one-half pounds round steak, flour, one onion, one small carrot, fat, salt, paprika, one cup boiling water. Pound into the steak as much flour as it will hold. Sear in hot fat. Add the onion and carrot. Place in the casserole with the salt, paprika and the boiling water and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) until tender, about one hour.

Caramel Sponge Cake.—Put a quarter cupful of sugar in a frying pan and caramelize it until of a brown color. Add one-half cup boiling water and three-quarters cupful of sugar. Boil this syrup until it threads. Beat five egg yolks in a bowl with a Dover egg beater until thick. Add the syrup very slowly, beating meanwhile, then gradually add a cupful of flour which has been measured, one-quarter teaspoon of salt added, and then sifted three times. Add a half teaspoon of vanilla. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and bake in a tube loaf pan about fifty minutes in a slow oven.

SERVE THESE TO YOUR FRIENDS AT LUNCHEON RYE RUSKS

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Two cups rye flour, one-half cup Graham flour, one cup wheat flour, one teaspoon salt. Stir together and add one-half cup sugar, a heaping tablespoon butter, one cake compressed yeast dissolved in warm sweet milk enough to make a soft batter. Put in a warm place to rise. When light add one cup seeded raisins. Let rise again, bake in muffin pans.

"The very same," declared the other.

"But you were so scary I could never get near you. My father would call, 'Peter, the wild parrot is here again,' and I would run out on the porch. The second you heard me coming, though, off you would go, all I could see were your tail feathers."

One day mother caught sight of you and whispered to me to come. It was growing dark, and you didn't see me as I crept up to the window. But there you were,

FEATURES

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

"1. Why do you advise those of us who are reducing to eat very little salt? 2. Does it do any harm if one finds it easy to go without breakfast, to omit that and to take the 1,200 calories or so in the other meals? 3. I have been on your diet for three weeks. The first week I went on the semi-liquid diet for three days, and lost but two pounds. The second week I almost fell off the scales when, although I had eaten more, I discovered I had lost five pounds! This week I have lost but two pounds again, for I had a cold, and, as you advise, I went back to the maintenance diet."

Answers: 1. The majority of us eat too much salt anyway. We need 20 to 30 grains a day and we take four times that amount. The reason I advise those who are reducing to cut salt down is that it causes the body tissues to hold water, and this, of course, keeps the weight higher; and too much salt is an irritant to the kidneys and blood vessels.

2. Yes, I think it is alright to omit breakfast if you find you do not care for it. I myself haven't had anything but a cup of coffee or tea for breakfast for years. (A cup of fruit juice would be better.) Many persons seem to be benefited by the no-breakfast plan, especially if inclined to overeating. However, there is no need of going without breakfast even if you are overweight, if you don't exceed your reducing number of calories during the day.

With some it is more convenient to have a fair-sized, breakfast and no lunch (or perhaps a little fruit), and a good-sized dinner in the evening.

3. The day before your official weighing, it is necessary to have the same number of calories and the same type of food that you had the week previous and to weigh at the same time of day. Otherwise you cannot judge the relationship between your calorie intake and what you have lost, due to the water balance factor.

"Can you tell me what to do for a sensitive nose? I sneeze and seem to have the worst head cold when riding on trains and sometimes in autos from the dust, also from anything frying on the stove. I contract cold very easily. Can this be due to sensitiveness? Would hay fever be a cause of a sensitive nose?"

Yes, A. Those suffering from hay fever are, for some reason, upset by pollens or dust or different animal emanations, or from food that do not cause any trouble in other people. Just what causes this sensitiveness is not known, but there is probably some undermining of the resistance, either through wrong hygienic habits or infected spots in the body. Asthma is also frequently caused by this sensitiveness. This, with liver and other skin eruptions are known as allergic manifestations. There are physicians who specialize in these diseases.

Spring Valley, Bellbrook High Teams Are Eliminated

DEFEATED IN FIRST CLASS B CONTESTS; BATH PLAYS FRIDAY

North Hampton And Rushsylvania Beat County Teams

Elimination came to Spring Valley and Bellbrook basketball teams in the first round of the Class B division of the regional basketball tournament at Springfield Friday morning.

Spring Valley, which won the Greene County Class B championship, was overpowered by Rushsylvania, 26 to 15, while Bellbrook, runner-up in the county tournament, encountered a 35 to 19 defeat at the hands of North Hampton, Clark County champions.

FAIR BOARD CONDUCTS STAKE RACING SURVEY

Questionnaires Will Determine Plan Of Speed Program This Year; Board Changes Grange Judging Plan.

The fate of stake racing at the 1929 Greene County Fair hinges upon the result of a questionnaire which has been sent to horsemen by Secretary J. Robert Bryson of the Greene County Agricultural Society.

About twenty-five of the one hundred questionnaires in which opinions of horsemen regarding the advisability of stake racing at county fairs is sought, have been returned to Secretary Bryson. Within a short time he expects to be able to make an announcement regarding the decision of the fair board in the matter.

Opposition to stake racing is felt by many horsemen and fair men because of the liability it has of eliminating horses from the later races of the season, according to Mr. Bryson.

Many horsemen withdrew their entries from the stakes gradually when the first meets develop fast horses that take all the money, leaving the entry lists so small in the last races of the season that they hold no interest for the fans. It is said. Greene County has the first fair on this circuit, and the entries for the local stake racing last year when that form of racing was revived after a number of years, were very large, bringing here some of the fast grand circuit horses.

Greene County, joined last year with Clinton and Fayette Counties for revival of stake racing.

Because of the indecision regarding stake races, the fair board which held a business meeting Thursday announced that it is ready to make known the speed program for the coming fair.

Leaders in boys' and girls' club work, Granges and other departments were received by the board Thursday at its meeting in the county commissioners' office, and a definite program for the coming nineteenth annual Greene County fair mapped out. A few changes were made in departmental heads. Miss Nellie Ankeney of Beavercreek, who was appointed to fill temporarily the position on the board vacated by Mrs. L. B. Jones, Miami Twp., who is spending several months in California, attended the meeting.

The board announced a change in the form of judging Grange displays. They will be judged this year by the point system, according to Secretary Bryson, and $140 has been set aside for prizes in the department. This system has been inaugurated as a means of stimulating more interest in the annual contests among the Granges, Mr. Bryson said. By this system, winner of the various prizes will be awarded premiums only according to the number of points they make, so that if the first winner does not make 100 points, it will be awarded the prize only according to the number of points it has been given by the judges. First prize in this department is to be $100; second $80; third $60, and $50 for each of the remaining granges competing.

The board appropriated $900 for prizes in the boys' and girls' club department.

Two new features for the coming fair have been engaged. One is a horse pulling contest, the other free attractions between races.

It is expected to have the horse pulling contests Wednesday and Thursday. Pulling abilities of horses are tested by means of a dynamometer, an apparatus mounted on a truck. It will be furnished by the state and operated by men sent here by the state.

The board has made a contract with Barnard's Circus and Performing Bears to furnish four free acts at the race track each afternoon between races. The contract was made through the Gus Sun Booking Co.

Contract for furnishing the 1929 fair catalogue was awarded to the Antioch Press, the only bidder. The firm making the bid will pay the fair board $50 for the privilege depending upon the advertising for its profit.

All members of the fair board with the exception of Mrs. Jones, for whom Miss Ankeney substituted, attended the meeting as follows: C. M. Austin, Bellbrook, president; B. U. Bell, Xenia, treasurer; J. E. Lewis, Jamestown; Thomas Faulkner, Caesarcreek; L. B. Harner, Bath; N. N. Hunter, James-

STATE OFFICIALS SPEAKERS AT FISH AND GAME BANQUET HERE

Between 200 and 300 sportsmen from all parts of the county attended the annual banquet of the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association at the Masonic Temple Thursday night.

J. W. Thompson, chief of the division of fish and game; Frank Brothers, connected with the state department of agriculture; Representative R. D. Williamson, Greene County, and John W. Prugh, former mayor of Xenia, now state birding and loan superintendent, were honor guests and principal speakers at the affair.

The two state officials discussed propagation and conservation of fish and game and explained what the state expects to accomplish in this connection.

It was pointed out that the fish and game division has imported a great number of Hungarian pheasants and is now raising about 40,000, which will be liberated in Ohio this fall. The division is also about to contract for sixty pair of wild turkeys. Their wings will be clipped and they will be allowed to multiply in an 800-acre inclosure on the Roosevelt state game preserve east of Portsmouth, O.

Sportsmen were also advised regarding the state's plan for distribution of fish in the streams in Ohio counties this year.

Mr. Prugh was the first speaker on the program and he was followed by Representative Williamson, who explained phases of the present legislative program concerning fish and game.

Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, presided at the banquet as master of ceremonies. Members of the organization also viewed a motion picture film showing scenes of a recent Alaskan big game hunting trip taken by Dr. Ullery, Springfield, who was a guest at the meeting.

STATE OFFICIALS SPEAKERS AT FISH AND GAME BANQUET HERE

Between 200 and 300 sportsmen from all parts of the county attended the annual banquet of the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association at the Masonic Temple Thursday night.

J. W. Thompson, chief of the division of fish and game; Frank Brothers, connected with the state department of agriculture; Representative R. D. Williamson, Greene County, and John W. Prugh, former mayor of Xenia, now state building and loan superintendent, were honor guests and principal speakers at the affair.

The two state officials discussed propagation and conservation of fish and game and explained what the state expects to accomplish in this connection.

It was pointed out that the fish and game division has imported a great number of Hungarian pheasants and is now raising about 40,000, which will be liberated in Ohio this fall. The division is also about to contract for sixty pair of wild turkeys. Their wings will be clipped and they will be allowed to multiply in an 800-acre inclosure on the Roosevelt state game preserve east of Portsmouth, O.

Sportsmen were also advised regarding the state's plan for distribution of fish in the streams in Ohio counties this year.

Mr. Prugh was the first speaker on the program and he was followed by Representative Williamson, who explained phases of the present legislative program concerning fish and game.

Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, presided at the banquet as master of ceremonies. Members of the organization also viewed a motion picture film showing scenes of a recent Alaskan big game hunting trip taken by Dr. Ullery, Springfield, who was a guest at the meeting.

The banquet was served at 7 o'clock in charge of the banquet committee of the Eastern Star.

The primary purpose of the affair was to inaugurate an intensive drive for membership renewals and new memberships for 1929.

The entertainment committee was composed of Ohmer Tate, John Bocklet and M. C. Smith.

Nearly 1,000 People See New Models When Xenia Auto Show Opens Thursday

By PHIL FRAME

FOR all the world like a scullery maid suddenly transported to a court ball, one of the early model autos, had it been on exhibition, would have seemed to quail under a terrific inferiority complex in the presence of the sleek cars of this year's vintage as Xenia's second auto show opened Thursday in the handsome new sales and service rooms of The Bryant Motor Sales Co., Market and Whiteman Sts.

The exposition, giving a glimpse of what highways of Greene County and the country will display this summer, was greeted on opening day and night by crowds variously estimated at between 800 and 1,000.

The show offers for three days' inspection the product of nearly every important automobile manufacturer in the country. From the lowest priced car to the most expensive models displayed, the exhibit is complete in every detail.

When your child is sleepless.

This remedy rarely fails.

Constipation is a common cause of sleeplessness both in children and adults. When a child is wakeful and fretful, see if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour, irritating waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have no more anxiety over the child's excitability and wakefulness at night. Children love this harmless "fruit" laxative. It banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and insures pure blood, a clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and helps to build a strong constitution.

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.

MAY EXTEND FIRE PROTECTION FROM CITY TO RURAL SECTIONS

City Commission will investigate the practicability of permitting the Xenia Fire Department to send apparatus to rural parts of Greene County if assistance is requested in combating fires at points which are without protection.

The question was brought up by Commissioner D. W. Cherry at the meeting Thursday night and was taken under consideration for the present. Agitation in favor of the proposal is being inspired by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association.

The commission hopes to work out some plan whereby this service can be made available to farmers without leaving Xenia unprotected in case of a blaze.

The present man power of the department includes only four regular firemen in addition to the fire chief. Under the platoon system, two regular firemen are on duty day and night with extra firemen subject to instant call.

At present the department is not permitted to respond to alarms beyond the corporate limits of the city.

These problems are to be investigated:

1.—Whether this special service to rural districts can be granted without increasing the present fire-fighting force.

2.—Whether the sending of a truck and two firemen at small cost to the scene of a blaze in the rural district would actually be of any help because of the absence in most instances of water with which to fight a fire.

Commissioners also discussed to some extent a municipally-owned electric light plant for Xenia, which is being investigated. All members of the commission attended the meeting except Jacob Kany.

PURCHASING AGENT VISITS CATTLE MEN

One of the most instructive and enjoyable events of the type that has been held here was a meeting of cattle feeders from various parts of Greene County, who enjoyed a luncheon at Cedar Inn, Cedarville, Thursday honoring Joseph Evans, purchasing agent for the National Feeder Cattle Pool, who headquarters are at Valparaiso, Texas.

Eleven thousand head of cattle have recently been shipped to Greene County feeders from the National Feeder Association, and Mr. Evans came to learn that the feeders in this locality may desire for future orders. He gave some interesting information regarding the conditions under which cattle are purchased from the range for the corn belt feeder, and spoke of the advantage of collective bargaining for stock.

Mr. Evans is one of the best known cattle men in the Midland Panhandle section, and the County Farm Bureau Shipping Association was honored to have him stop in the locality for a short time.

CUMMINGS TO FACE LUNACY PROBE HERE AFTER CONVICTION

Execution of a fine of $100 and costs and sentence of four months in the Cincinnati Workhouse, imposed upon William Cummings, 42, after he was found guilty of a charge of assault Thursday afternoon in Probate Court, was entered pending a hearing scheduled for 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to determine whether Cummings is mentally deranged.

Immediately after Cummings was convicted of a charge made by Josie M. Garrison, his landlady, that he attacked her with a hammer at her rooming house on S. West St., last February 23, his sister, Mrs. Anna Painter, filed a lunacy affidavit against him, asserting he is mentally irresponsible for his actions.

Cummings will therefore submit to a mental and physical examination by physicians appointed by the court.

Cummings, who surrendered himself to Sheriff Ohmer Taft upon learning that a warrant had been issued for his arrest on an affidavit filed by Mrs. Garrison, pleaded not guilty to the assault charge, claiming he was under the influence of liquor and was "too drunk to realize what he was doing" when the alleged attack took place.

Mrs. Garrison's version of the incident, given in court, was to the effect that Cummings, in an apparently sober condition, asked her for a hammer and a nail on the date in question. She obtained them for him, she said, and also acceded to his request that she play a certain record on the victrola.

They sat down to listen to the music and Cummings, noticing a man walking around the house, asked her if he "was not her sweetheart," she said. When she replied in the negative, Cummings, she charges, struck her a glancing blow over the right ear with the hammer, inflicting a deep gash.

Cummings, authorities recall, was convicted of a statutory offense by a jury in Common Pleas Court in January, 1927, and was sentenced to serve from three to twenty years in Ohio State Penitentiary. The Greene County Court of Appeals reversed the conviction in February, 1928 and remanded the case for a second trial. Prosecutor J. C. Marshall finally nolleed the indictment and Cummings did not stand trial again, being released.

TWENTY-FOUR 1929 models are on exhibit. Every car has its throng of admirers and dealers are in high spirits over the auspicious beginning. Offerings of twelve local dealers are being displayed.

Enclosed models are in the majority and the open, or touring car, is almost a thing of yesterday; the exhibit disclosed, although the sport roadsters come in for their share of attention.

Speed, of course, is the keynote, second to color and beauty, judging from the interest displayed by women in the autos.

The decorations form an attractive background for the exhibit of cars and consist of a profusion of flags, flowers and potted plants.

Each dealer participating in the show is exhibiting two models of each make of car which he represents. The Bryant Motor Sales is showing two new Ford models as the first practical use to which the company is putting its new headquarters.

Cars on display include the Buick, De Soto, Durant, Dodge, Hudson and Essex, Harmobile, Chandler, Oldsmobile, Nash, Graham-Paige, Chevrolet, Ford, Studebaker, Willys-Knight, Whippet and Chrysler. Participating dealers are: Xenia Garage Co., Johnston Motor Sales, Blader and Creamer, N. N. Hunter, Allen Motor Sales, Bales Motor Sales, Cowden and Pudge, Babb Hardware Co., Lang Chevrolet Co., Bryant Motor Sales, Greene County Hardware Co. and Ankeney Motor Sales.

THE SHOW will continue daily through Friday and Saturday, opening each day at 2:30 p. m. and closing at 10:30 p. m. Varied entertainment is being planned for each night and record crowds are expected to attend the final two days of the exposition.

Musical diversion arranged for Friday night will include orchestral entertainment by Henderson's band from Wilberforce and vocal selections by Mrs. Louise Coffelt, S. Whiteman St.

Thursday night musical entertainment was provided by Al Jones' four-piece Xenia orchestra and the Wilberforce University Quartet, stationed on a well-decorated platform in the show room.

The new Bryant Motor Sales, where the show is being held, is just being completed for occupancy by the local Ford agency which will soon move from its present location in the old Y. M. C. A. building at Market and Green Sts. Its spacious garage, new and modern in every respect, lends itself admirably to the use for which it was offered without cost to the auto dealers by Theatrical White, manager.

2.—Whether the sending of a truck and two firemen at small cost to the scene of a blaze in the rural district would actually be at any help because of the absence in most instances of water with which to fight a fire.

Commissioners also discussed to some extent a municipally-owned electric light plant for Xenia, which is being investigated. All members of the commission attended the meeting except Jacob Kaay.

PURCHASING AGENT VISITS CATTLE MEN

One of the most instructive and enjoyable events of the type that has been held here was a meeting of cattle feeders from various parts of Greene County, who enjoyed a luncheon at Cedar Inn, Cedarville, Thursday honoring Joseph Evans, purchasing agent for the National Feeder Cattle Pool, who headquarters are at Valparaiso, Texas.

Eleven thousand head of cattle have recently been shipped to Greene County feeders from the National Feeder Association, and Mr. Evans came to learn that the feeders in this locality may desire for future orders. He gave some interesting information regarding the conditions under which cattle are purchased from the range for the corn belt feeder, and spoke of the advantage of collective bargaining for stock. Mr. Evans is one of the best known cattle men in the Midland-Panhandle section, and the County Farm Bureau Shipping Association was honored to have him stop in the locality for a short time.

CUMMINGS TO FACE LUNACY PROBE HERE AFTER CONVICTION

Execution of a fine of $100 and costs and sentence of four months in the Cincinnati Workhouse, imposed upon William Cummings, 42, after he was found guilty of a charge of assault Thursday afternoon in Probate Court, was ordered pending a hearing scheduled for 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to determine whether Cummings is mentally deranged.

Immediately after Cummings was convicted of a charge made by Josie M. Garrison, his landlady, that he attacked her with a hammer at her rooming house on S. West St. last February 23, his sister, Mrs. Anna Painter, filed a lunacy affidavit against him, asserting he is mentally irresponsible for his actions. Cummings will therefore submit to a mental and physical examination by physicians appointed by the court.

Cummings, who surrendered himself to Sheriff Omer Tate upon learning that a warrant had been issued for his arrest on an affidavit filed by Mrs. Garrison, pleaded not guilty to the assault charge, claiming he was under the influence of liquor and was "too drunk to realize what he was doing" when the alleged attack took place.

Mrs. Garrison's version of the incident, given in court, was to the effect that Cummings, in an apparently sober condition, asked her for a hammer and a nail on the date in question. She obtained them for him, she said, and also acceded to his request that she play a certain record on the victrola.

They sat down to listen to the music and Cummings, noticing a man walking around the house, asked her if he "was not her sweetheart," she said. When she replied in the negative, Cummings, she charges, struck her a glancing blow over the right ear with the hammer, inflicting a deep gash.

Cummings, authorities recall, was convicted of a statutory offense by a jury in Common Pleas Court in January, 1927, and was sentenced to serve from three to twenty years in Ohio State Penitentiary. The Greene County Court of Appeals reversed the conviction in February, 1928 and remanded the case for a second trial. Prosecutor J. C. Marshall finally nolleed the indictment and Cummings did not stand trial again, being released.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Christ suggested God's program in the great commission based on "All authority hath been given unto me in Heaven and on earth." In that program was instituted ordinances, baptism and holy communion, which the church is to observe.

V. 19. "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit." God's program embraces evangelism, Christian education and missions. Heavenly recognition extended to all who accept God's program by the rite of baptism.

V. 20. "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Christian progress depends upon knowing and observing the teachings of Christ. When one has done his best in knowing and doing God's will, then and not until then can the promise of God's presence and help be claimed.

V. 22. "For I have received of the Lord that which I also delivered unto you." Paul claimed that he got his revelation and authority direct from the Lord, which in turn he had given to the church at Corinth.

Vs. 23, 24. "The Lord Jesus in the night in which he was betrayed and when he had given thanks, he brake it and said, this is my body which is for you; do this in remembrance of me." Life comes only by sacrifice—the seed dies in its germination, food is sacrificed for our physical existence; the higher life—the spiritual side of our being is made possible by the great sacrifice made by Christ which must be recognized vitally through fellowship and communion with God to which end the Lord's supper is a means.

Vs. 25. "In like manner also the cup, after supper, saying, this cup is the new covenant of my blood; this do as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me." The word translated "covenant" may mean a "testament," or will, or "agreement." Here it has both meanings, for Christ's atonement for our sins on the cross was a covenant between God and man, and it was sealed by Christ's death.

V. 26. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." Christianity is a religion of hope. It has great memories but still greater prospects. With it the best is ever to be.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. Why was Jesus baptized? Who should be baptized? Why?
2. What should be the attitude toward those who differ from us on the subject of baptism?
3. Of what value are symbols? Of what value are church ordinances?
4. What results follow the Lord's Supper properly observed?
5. How may this ordinance be better observed?
6. What dangers attend all ordinances?
7. How carry out the great commission more efficiently?

Clericus says, "Penitence, prayer, church attendance, Bible reading, godly living, baptism and the Lord's Supper are bolts that hold the soul to God and thus assure salvation against all dangers."

LESSON PRAYER

"We thank thee for means, such as baptism and the Lord's Supper, making fellowship and communion with God vital; lead us to use these sacred means more faithfully."

BOOK REVIEW

"The Flery Cross," Boreham, The Abingdon Press, consists of a series of meditations on physical realities having spiritual interpretations.

"Betty May," Hanson, The Abingdon Press, gives glimpses into baby psychology telling how a mother met and solved some of the problems in every day experience with a baby.

Church Forum

1. How may church and Sunday School news be prepared in such form that it will appeal to a busy editor? Three fundamental rules have been found essential in the preparation of church "copy" for the press.

First, identify yourself with the local paper by reading it carefully and establish a personal contact that will engender mutual confidence. Report such news of general interest that may reach you, at least giving good leads for stories. The editor's appreciation for such help will go a long way in establishing mutual confidence and in making it easy to have your church news accepted. Secondly, carefully distinguish between church and particularly denominational "propaganda" and real significant news. There is an unconscious tendency for self advertising or for self-praise in much of the copy sent to newspapers. Significant news must be interesting to the majority of newspaper readers and must have real news value—something out of the ordinary with real merit. Thirdly, follow newspaper technique in writing a "story" that will call for the minimum amount of editorial revision, so well written that the editor will say, "I can't cut your stories without ruining them." The technique of the newspaper has to do with style of writing, spelling, methods of abbreviating titles, condensation of language, absence of comparisons and superlatives having indirect reflections and arrangement of facts. It would pay to study newspaper technique, which can be done by studying good newspapers and by reading books written on the subject.

Fourth, use the word "church" in its proper sense, not as a synonym for "denomination." The word "church" means the body of Christ, the people of God, not a particular denomination. The word "denomination" means a particular group of people who have adopted certain beliefs and practices. The word "sect" means a group of people who have adopted certain beliefs and practices, but who are not recognized by the majority of the Christian community. The word "heresy" means a belief or doctrine that is contrary to the teachings of the Christian faith. The word "schism" means a division or separation between members of the same church or denomination. The word "heretic" means a person who holds a heretical belief or doctrine. The word "schismatic" means a person who is a schismatic. The word "heretic" means a person who is a heretic. The word "schismatic" means a person who is a schismatic.

Vs. 25. "In like manner also the cup, after supper, saying, this cup is the new covenant of my blood; this do as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me." The word translated "covenant" may mean a "testament," or will, or "agreement." Here it has both meanings, for Christ's atonement for our sins on the cross was a covenant between God and man, and it was sealed by Christ's death.

V. 26. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." Christianity is a religion of hope. It has great memories but still greater prospects. With it the best is ever to be.

A BEAUTIFUL SWISS CUSTOM

One of the most beautiful customs which has been in vogue for centuries is that practiced by the Alpine herdsmen of Switzerland when the light of day is waning and the sun sinks in the west.

Just as the last rays of the sun are disappearing, and the golden glow is reflected on the white mountain tops, the herdsman, taking on the highest mountain peak, takes his Alpine horn and calls loudly, "Praise the Lord God! Praise the Lord God!" As soon as these words are heard by the neighboring herdsman below, he takes his Alpine horn and relays the call to his neighbor. Down the mountain side the call goes, sounding like some wonderful echo and lasting for about a quarter of an hour. When silence falls every herdsman kneels by his flock in evening devotion. Finally when devotions are over, the herdsman living on the highest ridge again calls, "Good-night! Good-night!" and this call is in turn carried down the mountain side, and with this last thought of gratitude and praise for their Maker, the herdsman drift back to their cottages and all is silent.

World Religious News

The presbytery of New York at a recent meeting unanimously passed a resolution recommending the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal and Protestant Episcopal churches. This would bring into one religious group a total church membership of more than 8,000,000 people. A committee has recently been appointed at Columbia University to advise and encourage religious tendencies among the students of the University. This committee

A service has been planned by the Episcopal church of St. Mark's in the Bowerie, New York City in honor of Michelangelo, whose birthday occurs March 6. Michelangelo, greatest of artists and sculptors, created St. Peter's cathedral, the glory of Rome. His statues of "Moses" and "St. Peter in Chains" are proofs of his genius as a sculptor.

Church building is one of the greatest enterprises in the United States, according to a recent report by Dr. Albert F. McGarrah, director of the Department of Building Fund Campaigns of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, who has just raised $2,500,000 in the last three months for building of fifty churches. The average income of one million dollars per month for church building enterprises indicates that there is no let down in the great church building movement which has swept over the country since the close of the World War.

The Better Way

WHY HE LOST HIS FRIENDS

He was always wounding their feelings, making sarcastic funny remarks at their expense; he was cold and reserved in his manner, cranky, gloomy, pessimistic. He was suspicious of everybody. He never threw the doors of his heart wide open to people, or took them into his confidence. He was always ready to receive assistance from them but always too busy or too stingy to assist them in their time of need. He did not realize that friendship will not thrive on sentiment alone; there must be service to nourish it. He did not know the value of thoughtfulness in little things. He borrowed money from them. He never hesitated to sacrifice their reputation for his advantage. He was always saying mean things about them in their absence. He measured them by their ability to advance him. Success.

READ ORDINANCE TO FINANCE EAST END SEWER EXTENSION

A routine ordinance, authorizing a bond issue of $12,300, the estimated cost, to finance the extension of the sewer systems on E. Market and E. Church Sts. in anticipation of the collection of special tax assessments, was introduced and placed on its first reading by City Commission Thursday night.

The commission also placed on its first reading an ordinance under which assessments for the cost of the improvement will be levied against benefited property owners. The city has extended the sewer district on E. Market St. east for 635 feet and on E. Church St. from Columbus to Patton St.

The maximum maturity of the bond issue is ten years and property owners assessed for the expense may pay the taxes in ten annual installments if they so desire.

The bonds will first be offered to the interest and sinking fund trustees for purchase and if rejected by them, will be offered at public sale.

SUIT CLAIMS MARE WAS WORTHLESS; OTHER COURT NEWS

Melvin J. Hansell, in a suit for $245 filed in Common Pleas Court against Clarence Mangan, complains that a gray mare, which he purchased from the defendant for $141 at a public sale, instead of being a sound and quiet worker in every respect as represented, turned out to be a vicious, plunging and kicking mare which is practically worthless as a work horse.

Hansell sets forth that he purchased a team of gray mares for $282, from the defendant February 9, 1928 at a public sale of chattel property held on a farm occupied by him at that time in Xenia Twp., and that they were guaranteed to be sound workers.

When the took the team to his farm, hitched it and tried to work it the next day, one of the horses proved unmanageable on that and subsequent occasions, the plaintiff asserts.

Hansell charges the defendant refused to buy back the mare at the original price or make good his guarantee and he seeks to recover $141, the price of the horse; $80 which he spent in feeding the animal for 200 days at the rate of 40 cents a day and $24 for pasture expenses. Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiff.

ADMINISTRATORS NAMED

W. J. Galvin has been appointed administrator of the estate of Huldah A. Galvin, late of Jamestown, with bond of $3,000 in Probate Court. W. W. Johnson, R. G. George and Frank Shigley were named appraisers.

O. S. Hargrave has been named administrator of the estate of Laura Bell Hargrave, late of Jefferson Twp., and has filed bond of $500.

Ralph M. Neeld was appointed administrator of the estate of James W. Wastie, late of Xenia Twp., with $500 bond. The court appointed T. J. Kennedy, M. L. Wolf and Joseph Canning as appraisers of the property.

The highways of the township will cost the township many hundreds of dollars extra this year due to the high waters.

Clarence Berryhill has moved to the farm he recently purchased of Lawrence Coy.

Mrs. Della V. Hopkins moved a load of household goods to her residence here this week.

Lacy Peterson and wife were Bellbrook visitors last Sunday.

All mails in the village were held up Tuesday on account of the high waters.

Miss Ida Weller was on the sick list for a few days of the past week.

TREASURY REGIME PROBE SUGGESTED IN NEW RESOLUTION

alleged obtaining of "enforced loans" from banks, "kiting" of checks, sale of positions in the department "in the return for campaign contributions" and the making of loans to banks without receiving bids as required by law.

An investigating committee of four representatives—two Republicans and two Democrats appointed by the speaker of the house—is demanded in the resolution which also provides that the attorney general shall be legal advisor to the committee and that it shall be assisted by an investigator selected by the two Democratic members.

The committee would be instructed to make an impartial investigation and would be authorized to continue its work beyond the legislative session if necessary, financed by an appropriation of $10,000.

Buckley resigned several weeks ago after he was convicted of conspiring to bribe a federal prohibition agent. He is to be sentenced on March 11.

The resolution was introduced coincident with the issuance in Cincinnati of an order by Federal Judge Benson W. Hough directing that Buckley, an attorney, and Adolph Gruber, a Cincinnati lawyer, who were involved in the federal charge against the treasurer, be disbarred from further practice of law in Ohio.

Rep. Cave, discussing his resolution, said its purpose is to determine "the truth or falsity" of reports current for weeks in official circles.

"I have no partisan motive whatever," he said.

The resolution will come before the house Monday night. Unless a different procedure is adopted, it will be sent to the reference committee.

The text of the resolution follows in part:

"Whereas:

"1. Reports are current that enforced loans were made by banks to the former treasury of state under circumstances that smack of bribery and corruption.

"2. Reports are current that the official aforesaid 'kited' or manipulated checks by reason of his official position.

"3. It was admitted under oath that bribery money was deposited in the treasury and a cashier's check taken therefor.

"4. Reports are current that certain subordinates were required to make campaign contributions and donations of such size and in such amounts and under such conditions as to suggest purchase and sale of positions contrary to the corrupt practice act of Ohio and that such subordinates are still in office.

"5. Reports are current that the official aforesaid schemed, connived or plotted with various persons in slot machine legislation and alleged regulation, all contrary to the best traditions of this state and good morals in public office.

"6. Reports are current that excessive loans were made without the usual procedure of bids.

"Whereas, such reports, founded or unfounded, have a strong tendency to undermine the confidence of the citizens in government; and the author of this resolution in common with a large percentage of our citizens does not know the facts.

"Therefore, be it resolved that the speaker of the house be and is hereby directed to appoint a committee of four members of the house, two members of which shall be of the majority party and two members of which shall be of the minority party.

"Said committee shall have full power to make a thorough searching and impartial investigation of all transactions in said department including all reports and examinations made by the auditor of state for the past six years."

Andy Adair, one of her schoolmates, secures her a position in a night club where she is expected to act as hostess to lonesome men. Here she discovers that entertainers and guests, alike, take it for granted she is Andy's woman. She resents this assumption, but finds it difficult to combat. As a dancer at the night club she seems to make good and the proprietor says he will keep her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

After Betty had danced at the Iron Door for two weeks she became quite friendly with all the carefree but kindly group of girl performers. The solemn-faced juggler drifted on, and one of the singers had also exhausted her popularity. New people came to replace them; Betty realized her position was only temporary.

While she received enough applause she would be retained, but as soon as fickle patrons lost interest, in her dancing she would have to find a new position. In spite of efforts to forget, this weighed on her mind and depressed her.

Andy was still attentive, dropping in sometimes with another man or two, but often alone. He usually met her at the close of the last show, to take her for a ride before going home. Betty slowly but surely learned the theatrical habit of sleeping late in the morning, and now went out little except in the late afternoon.

She had been provident with her money, saving most of it. Girls at the Iron Door were given a mid-night meal between shows. In her desire to keep her figure she ate only this meal and her very late breakfast.

One night just after she danced, Bill Paxton sent a waiter for her. When she joined him at the table from which he always watched the show and the dining room service, he said: "Guy wants to meet you. Big politician. Yes him to death."

He led her across the dance floor to a tall man sitting alone at one of the tables. "Jake, this is Miss Brown, Mr. Daubert, Betty."

"Hello, Kid!" said Daubert, without rising. Betty seated herself reluctantly.

"Want a drink?" he asked.

"Mr. Paxton doesn't permit us to drink," Betty gave him the reply used by all the girls. It excused her, and did not offend the men who ordered.

"You can drink with me, I can close this place tomorrow if I want to, and Bill Paxton knows it."

"But I never drink anyway. I tried, but I don't like the taste of it."

"Tell that to the much-advertised 'Marines'!" jeered Daubert. "The only people who don't drink are people who can't get it."

"It must be wonderful to be able to get everything you want!" flattered Betty.

"I do. I want you to drink!" boasted the fat man.

"I wish I didn't have to refuse. Wouldn't you like to dance?"

"No, I don't dance. I just drink. I guess Bill didn't tell you who I am. I'm the inside man in city politics in this part of town. When I snap my fingers they all have to hop."

"Are you an alderman?" asked Betty, trying to evade the liquor issue.

"I make and break aldermen. I make and break mayors, too. I never hold office. I sell office holders here to get off."

"I knew you must be a big man," Betty tried to carry out Paxton's instructions to please this man, although she loathed the piggy eyes, peering at her from puffed lids, the tier after tier of chins rising from his collar and the big diamond rings on his pudgy, hairy fingers.

"Who put you on here?" he asked.

"Mr. Paxton hired me, if that's what you mean."

"I know, but who got you your job?"

"Mr. Adair, an old schoolmate of mine, introduced me to Mr. Paxton."

"I ain't talking of the college kids. I want to know who is behind you. Come clear up. I don't quite understand you. I am hired because I dance. I suppose I will lose my position when the guests tire of me."

"Blah! I don't like 'em when they talk too much, though, sister. Keep Sugar Papa bid, if you want to. But if nothing but your dancing holds you here, you won't stay long. Better hook up with some guy like me!"

"I hope you like my dancing," Betty spoke nervously. She had heard the other girls talk, and anticipated some unpleasantness.

"I like your dancing all right, kid, and I like you, too. No girl was ever sory she was nice to Jake Daubert. I got a pull in this town. I tell you."

"You stay here till I finish talking! I got something to say to you. You are not living on the money you make here. But I like you for keeping your mouth shut. Nothing to this college boy stuff! How about you and me hooking up, kid?" His hand under the table pressed her knee.

"I must go!" Betty slipped out of her chair on the side away from him.

"Hey, wait a minute!" cried Daubert, but Betty pretended not to hear. She rushed breathlessly to the dressing room and sat panting, waiting for her next appearance. She rubbed her knee vigorously, to relieve it of the contamination of his touch.

She was nervous when she did her next dance. She had learned the dancer's trick of shading her eyes with her hand and, peering across the tables, saw him still seated there. If he sent for her again, she determined to tell Bill Paxton what he had proposed and not to go back.

As she hurried out of the entrance after the last show, Jake Daubert grabbed her shoulder. She turned to avoid a scene as several people were passing.

"What's hurry?" he asked, grinning.

"It is late. I must go home," she explained, trying to twist her shoulder from his grasp. His hand slipped down, and he took a firm grip on her wrist instead.

"I'll take you home," He pointed at a car with a chauffeur, who was standing at the curb.

"No, I will walk. I don't want to ride with you."

"You are riding with me," he announced, pulling her toward the car.

Once in the big limousine, Betty knew she would have no chance with this man. He held her by the left hand. She swung her right with all the strength in her, hitting him a resounding smack in the face.

"You little hell cat!" he exclaimed. "I'll tame you fast enough!" He did not release his hold on her, but still pulled her toward the car.

"Let me loose or I'll scream!" cried Betty, excitedly, trying to jerk away from him. They were close to the car now. Betty saw a roadster pulling in behind it. She recognized it and cried: "Andy! Andy!"

Almost before the second call Andy was at her side. His fist hit Daubert in the eyes, and as his head doubled

"I do. I want you to drink!" boasted the fat man.

"I wish I didn't have to refuse. Wouldn't you like to dance?"

"No. I don't dance. I just drink. I guess Bill didn't tell you who I am. I'm the inside man in Betty politics in this part of town. When I snap my fingers they all have to hop."

"Are you an alderman?" asked Betty, trying to evade the liquor issue.

"I make and break aldermen. I make and break mayors, too. I never hold office. I tell office holders where to get off."

"I know you mean a big man," Betty tried to carry out Paxton's instructions to please this man, although she loathed the piggy eyes, peering at her from puffed lids, the tier after tier of chins rising from his collar and the big diamond rings on his pudgy, hairy fingers.

"Who put you on here?" he asked.

"Mr. Paxton hired me, if that's what you mean."

"I know, but who got you your job?"

"Mr. Adair, an old schoolmate of mine, introduced me to Mr. Paxton."

"I ain't talking of the college kids. I want to know who is behind you. Come clean!"

"Why, no one is behind me. I don't quite understand you. I am hired because I dance. I suppose I will lose my position when the guests tire of me."

"Blah! I don't like 'em when they talk too much, though, sister. Keep Sugar Papa bid if you want to. But if nothing but your dancing holds you here, you won't stay long. Better hook up with some guy like me!"

"I hope you like my dancing," Betty spoke nervously. She had heard the other girls talk, and anticipated some unpleasantness.

"I like your dancing all right, kid, and I like you, too. No girl was ever sorer than I was when I got a pull in this town, I tell you!"

"It must be very wonderful. I have to change my costume before long. I must go to the dressing room now."

"You stay here till I finish talking! I got something to say to you. You are not living on the money you make here. But I like you for keeping your mouth shut. Nothing to this college boy stuff! How about you and me hooking up, kid?" His hand under the table pressed her knee.

"I must go!" Betty slipped out of her chair on the side away from him.

"Hey, wait a minute!" cried Daubert, but Betty pretended not to hear. She rushed breathlessly to the dressing room and sat panting, waiting for her next appearance. She rubbed her knee vigorously, to relieve it of the contamination of his touch.

She was nervous when she did her next dance. She had learned the dancer's trick of shading her eyes with her hand and, poering across the tables, saw him still seated there. If he sent her for again, she determined to tell Bill Paxton what he had proposed and not to go back.

As she hurried out of the entrance after the last show, Jake Daubert grabbed her shoulder. She turned to avoid a scene as several people were passing.

"What's hurry?" he asked, grinning.

"It is late. I must go home," she explained, trying to twist her shoulder from his grasp. His hand slipped down, and he took a firm grip on her wrist instead.

"I'll take you home," he pointed at a car with a chauffeur, which was standing at the curb.

"No, I will walk. I don't want to ride with you."

"You are riding with me," he announced, pulling her toward the car.

Once in the big limousine, Betty knew she would have no chance with this man. He held her by the left hand. She swung her right with all the strength in her, hitting him a resounding smack in the face.

"You little hell cat!" he exclaimed. "I'll tame you fast enough!" He did not release his hold on her, but still pulled her toward the car.

"Let me loose or I'll scream!" cried Betty, excitedly, trying to jerk away from him. They were close to the car now. Betty saw a roadster pulling in behind it. She recognized it and cried: "Andy! Andy!"

Almost before the second call Andy was at her side. His fist hit Daubert in the eyes, and as his head doubled back, he staggered. Andy's other fist landed in the pit of his stomach. Daubert grunted and sat down on the rumpled board of his own car.

Andy did not wait for more as several people had gathered. Hustling Betty to his roadster, he buckled away from the limousine and drove off. He turned the corner, looking back to see if the other car was coming, but Daubert evidently had enough, as his car had not moved.

"Oh, Andy, you were wonderful!" cried Betty, patting his arm. Before he could reply she burst into tears and buried her face in his coat sleeve.

"That big fat crook may try to kang me for this, but I don't care. I got in a couple of good punches," he stopped the car on the river road and cuddled Betty in his arms. She still sobbed, so he put his hand under her chin and kissed her.

Betty was so happy over her rescue that she threw both arms around his neck and kissed him rapturously. Andy held her so close that she was breathless but very happy.

"I have kissed you often," said Andy, pushing her away. "But that's the first time you ever kissed me. Are you falling for me?"

"I like you better than anyone in the world!" exclaimed Betty, kissing him again.

"That certainly sounds good to me," cried Andy. "I shall make you prove that, young lady! But I won't rush the act, as you theatrical people say. Kiss me pretty like that, again!"

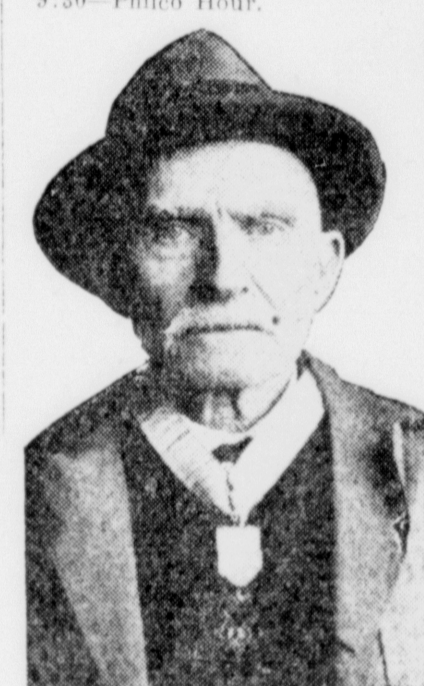

Betty kissed him, again and again. She clung to him both physically and mentally. She felt very much alone this night, and Andy seemed about all there was left in the world for her.

Hart retired from pictures six years ago when he was at the top of his earning power and popularity. It hurt me to do it then and it still hurts me but the film day of the western badman is over."

"I'm better off tinkering around my ranch and trying to write books. I'll never try the pictures again." Hart's ranch is a 72-acre place.

Yet the work of some of these cowboys was the most sincere that Hollywood has ever seen. Where-as other performers live unaccustomed roles or acquire certain abilities in order to portray characters to which they were by nature foreign, the western stars were in their own element and their screen performances required no special tutoring. Only the stories portrayed make it "play-acting."

COOLIDGE BREAKS LONG PRECEDENT—LEAVES WHITE HOUSE FACE WREATHED IN SMILES

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Gazette
WASHINGTON, Mar. 1.—Calvin Coolidge leaves the White House with a triumphant toot of trumpets.

This is something no other president has done in a long time. Even had Warren G. Harding lived, his term could hardly have ended happily. Woodrow Wilson retired a physical wreck and crushed by disappointment. William Howard Taft was a good loser—but he needed to be, after the thumping defeat which terminated his presidential tenancy. Theodore Roosevelt departed so regretfully that he tried to leave the door ajar for his return—only to have it slammed after him. William McKinley did not live to become an exception. Grover Cleveland closed his second administration with the political roof falling on his head. Harrison was beaten for re-election; Arthur for a re-nomination, which he wanted; like McKinley, Garfield died tragically; Hayes' whole term was clouded.

In a half century, at least until Calvin Coolidge's day, not a retiring president has descended the White House steps in as high spirits as at the hour he ascended them.

From all appearances Mr. Coolidge not only is in as good spirits as ever he was, but decidedly better.

He leaves because, he CHOSE to do so.

In office he accomplished what he set out to accomplish.

He turns over to his successor the leadership of a party which his own leadership has strengthened. His personal political credit stands A-1.

His health is robust. He is not yet old.

With the presidency of the United States to start from, in a sense, he is on the threshold of a career, rather than at the end of one.

Life lies before him.

Is it any wonder that Mr. Coolidge looks cheerful? He faces the future with decided advantages in his favor.

Few persons who have been in close contact with Calvin Coolidge from the time of his induction into office until the last days of his administration have failed to remark upon the change which has come over him.

Yet there is reason to believe that the real Mr. Coolidge is the Mr. Coolidge of today; not the Mr. Coolidge of the latter half of 1923, and of 1924, and of the entire subsequent period up until the date of that celebrated "do not choose" utterance of his, toward the end of his Black Hills vacation in 1927.

It was directly following that utterance that the change in him began to be noticed. However, it was gradual for a good while. Not until late January or early February, 1929, can Mr. Coolidge really be said to have completed his transformation.

Or was it, in fact, no change at all? Was it simply a reversion to the original Mr. Coolidge?

What a president was like before he became president generally is forgotten, with surprising thoroughness, very soon after he moves into the White House.

His surroundings invest him with a new and artificial personality, and his previous one does not even seem to be remembered.

The former Mr. Hoover already is a rather vague reminiscence. Consequently, it is difficult to find anyone who recalls much of Vice President Coolidge.

Nevertheless, few old-timers do recollect that he was not considered an especially glum presiding officer of the senate. I have met still older acquaintances of the retiring chief magistrate—neighbors who knew him during the by-gone days at Northampton—who appeared surprised by references to his White House reactivity.

Coolidge—yesterday—and today.

Mr. Coolidge took over the presidency at an hour of national mourning. His predecessor's death was speedily followed by serious trouble, involving members of the official family he had inherited. He lost a son early in his administration. His nomination in 1924 was exceedingly unpopular with many of his own party leaders. His father died.

Doubtless he was depressed. Mr. Coolidge is not the man to discuss his griefs and anxieties, but he reflects them in his visage and manner.

He has not an angry temper but he can be crabbed.

His face, in repose, is as bleak as a rock-bound coast of New England.

At the time he was fairly settled in the executive mansion, he had his salient characteristics sketched out for him—by others—as they saw him just then—and it was this picture which was nationally accepted as the living image of Calvin Coolidge—no more to be tampered with than George Washington's portrait on a silver certificate.

It was not an unfaithful portrait of the dour-faced Mr. Coolidge who rode in the inaugural procession four years ago.

It is not much more like the genial-looking Mr. Coolidge of today than Mr. Hoover is like him. They have the same general complement of features but very little else in common.

Yet I question the theory that the presidency has changed Mr. Coolidge, fundamentally. Upon his retirement, I believe the White House is returning its original citizen to Northampton.

was gradual for a good while. Not until late January or early February, 1929, can Mr. Coolidge really be said to have completed his transformation.
Or was it, in fact, no change at all? Was it simply a reversion to the original Mr. Coolidge?

What a president was like before he became president generally is forgotten, with surprising thoroughness, very soon after he moves into the White House.
His surroundings invest him with a new and artificial personality, and his previous one does not even seem to be remembered.
The former Mr. Hoover already is a rather vague reminiscence.
Consequently, it is difficult to find anyone who recalls much of
Vice President Coolidge.
Nevertheless, few old-timers do recollect that he was not considered an especially glum presiding officer of the senate. I have met

Coolidge—yesterday—and today.

still older acquaintances of the retiring chief magistrate—neighbors who knew him during the by-gone days at Northampton—who appeared surprised by references to his White House tenacity.
Mr. Coolidge took over the presidency at an hour of national mourning. His predecessor's death was speedily followed by serious trouble, involving members of the official family he had inherited. He lost a son early in his administration. His nomination in 1924 was exceedingly unpopular with many of his own party leaders. His father died.
Doubtless he was depressed.
Mr. Coolidge is not the man to discuss his griefs and anxieties, but he reflects them in his visage and manner.
He has not an angry temper but he can be crabbed.
His face, in repose, is as bleak
as the rock-bound coast of New England.
By the time he was fairly settled in the executive mansion, he had his salient characteristics sketched out for him—by others—as they saw him just then—and it was this picture which was nationally accepted as the living image of Calvin Coolidge—no more to be
